Russians Racing Toward Warsaw

MOSCOW, July 25.—Russian armor raced westward less than 50 miles from Warsaw and to the south struck within sight of the Wisla (Vistula) river as military sources proclaimed jubilantly that the entire group of German armies on the central front had been virtually destroyed.

(The London Evening News quoted a Morocco broadcast as saying that the Germans were preparing to evacuate Warsaw and Krakow.)

German military power in the east appeared to be tottering in the balance under Red army blows opening the way for a whirlwind advance which promised to bring Warsaw under siege by the weekend.

CITIES UNDER SIEGE

Siedlce, 50 miles due east of Warsaw, was being stormed and had been by-passed. The great fortress cities of Lwow and Brest Litovsk, were under siege far behind the Soviet vanguard. Russian troops were pouring across the San River 60 miles west of Lwow. The ancient citadels of Jaroslaw and Przemysl were threatened.

(Nazi broadcasts said the Russians were pushing forward from a line through Siedlce, Sokolov,

Manning Says:

Alberta First To Reduce Age For Balloting

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

BOW ISLAND, July 25.—Alberta's Social Credit government was first to reduce voting age from 21 to 19 years—the reduction being effected because the government thought if youths were old enough to fight for their country they were old enough to vote, Premier Ernest Manning told a capacity audience of 800 at Bow Island Monday.

Speaking in support of Mrs E. Thurston, Social Credit candidate for Cypress constituency, Mr. Manning explained his government's policies in connection with education, health, natural resources, oil and gas resources, and monetary reform.

GREAT RESPONSIBILITY

He told listeners a great responsibility rested on Alberta voters on election day, Aug. 8, saying their decision would affect social and monetary reform all over the world. The province must lead the way as she has done for the last 10 years, he declared.

On the platform with Mr. Manning and Mrs. Thurston were Dr. J. L. Robinson, Medicine Hat; A. W. Flamme, ex-M.L.A., Cypress; W. K. Bateman, president of Cypress constituency, and Mayor Brown.

Mr. Flamme, chairman, called the meeting to order. Mayor Brown then gave the official address of welcome to Premier Manning on behalf of the town, after which W. K. Bateman and Dr. Robinson spoke briefly.

Mrs. Thurston defended the right of women to sit in the legislature, asking who was in a better position to help make and carry out the laws of the country than the mothers of the children who were to inherit the land. She stressed health legislation and the construction of debt free roads under SC government.

THANKS MAYOR

Premier Manning thanked Mayor Brown for the warm welcome accorded him on behalf of the town. Mr. Manning said he had no political ambitions whatsoever and that there were many other things he would rather do than be in political life, but that as long as he could be of service to the people of Alberta he was willing to carry on and give of his best. He outlined in detail the government's program to advance the welfare of Alberta citizens.

Torture-Murder Suspects Seized

TORONTO, July 25—(CP)—Ontario provincial police headquarters here today disclosed the arrest of three unidentified men on murder charges in connection with the death of Mrs. Viola Jamieson of Flanders, Ont., from the effects of having been placed on a hot stove and otherwise burned in her home on the night of June 10.

Three men who entered her home attempted to make her divulge the hiding place of her money. When she refused they held flaming newspapers to her limbs and placed her on a hot stove. The woman died in hospital at Fort Frances July 2 from the effects of the torture.

An Ontario provincial police officer said the three arrested had been taken at Atikokan, Ont., and "other places." He declined to divulge further information in the case, described as one of the "Most serious and dastardly" in the crime history of Ontario. Further investigations are still going on.

Police learned details of the case from Mrs. Jamieson before she died and from her two young sons who were witnesses.

LONDON, July 25—A force of up to 500 Italy-based U.S. heavy bombers, escorted by Lightnings and Mustangs, wrecked havoc in the new Hermann Goering tank works at Linz, Austria, today as a record-breaking armada of 1,500 heavies smashed at the German battle lines in Normandy.

These two blows followed telling night attacks by RAF raiders which set the German industrial city of Stuttgart afire with 2,500 tons of high explosives and more than 30,000 fire bombs.

This was the first time the barely-completed Hermann Goering tank plant has been bombed. It was designed to produce 1,000,000 tons of iron and steel a year as well as to manufacture tanks and armored cars.

CCF in Sask. Will Not Take Over Breweries

REGINA, July 25—Asked whether the provincial government proposed to socialize the breweries in Saskatchewan, Premier T. C. Douglas said when interviewed in Ottawa last night it was not the intention of his government to socialize an industry just for the sake of socializing it. If it were possible to obtain their objectives by other means they would do so.

"The breweries are practically under government control now," said Mr. Douglas. "We are the only customers they have and we have control of the price we will pay for their product."

Amplifying the statement made by the Premier, Provincial Treasurer Fines said that provided the profit motive could be eliminated, apart from an allowance to the breweries of a fair return on their investment, there would be no question of taking over the plants. His main endeavor was to see that a fair price was charged by the breweries, a fair price to the consumer and a fair ration of this

WITH THE CANADIAN CORPS IN ITALY, July 25.—(CP)—It got to be a routine. For six days the Germans fell back until 3 p.m., then they would stand on a new ridge and fight back and be gone again in the morning.

For six days the Calgary regiment and its British infantry kept on their trail through the Chiana Valley, chased them from Valiano through Foiano Della Chiana to Monte San Savino and beyond into the rugged hill country southwest of Arezzo.

There life became the disquieting life of holding a static position with Germans of the Herman Goering division constantly harrying the tanks and infantry with shellfire, counter-attacks and patrols.

Yanks Drive Inland On Tinian Island

PEARL HARBOR, July 25. — (AP)—American marines advanced 1,500 yards inland on the north end of Tinian Island and captured the western third of the 1,500-yard-long Tinian airstrip, U.S. Pacific fleet headquarters announced last night.

The American assault forces which conquered Saipan Island, three miles to the north, landed on Tinian Sunday, on the northwest coast adjacent to the Ushi Point airfield.

Earlier yesterday it was announced that American invaders of Guam, at the end of the Marianas chain 125 miles south of Tinian, had completely cut off Japanese troops on Orote peninsula, site of Guam's main airfields.

By nightfall Sunday marines had firmly secured a beachhead 2½ miles long on Tinian and had penetrated inland 1,500 yards at several places.

"Our casualties through July 23 were light," said last night's communique.

Previously the Canadian government had the opportunity to buy such surplus material as it desired and the U.S. had to dispose of the balance. Planning for the present agreement started in May, Col. Strong said, but could not be announced until details were complete.

All supplies which are judged surplus by U.S. officials are being collected at 30 maintenance camps along the highway, he said. A party of Canadian and U.S. officials will conduct a "grand survey" of the collection depots, leaving Edmonton next Monday morning.

British, Canadians, Americans In Powerful New Offensive

By GLADWIN HILL

LONDON, July 25.—(AP)—Supported by a massive armada of some 4,000 aircraft, British, Canadian and American forces burst forth at both ends of the 100-mile Normandy front today, and shoved the Germans backward in probably the greatest co-ordinated ground drive since D-Day.

Three thousand U.S. planes, including a record mission of 1,500 heavy bombers, smashed at the Germans opposing the new American offensive, location of which was not disclosed.

Hundreds of other planes supported the British-Canadian push south of Caen. In quick initial gains of more than a mile, British and Canadian tanks and infantry battling toward open tank country captured two towns, despite fierce resistance by at least two German SS. armored divisions.

HEAVY FIGHTING

"Fighting continues very strenuously on both the British and American sectors," headquarters said.

OTTAWA, July 25—While no progress report has yet been made to the minister of labor on the fact-finding inquiry launched into combines and cartels in Canada last May by the Commissioner of Combines Investigation Act, F. Disclousure that the inquiry was under way came last night in parliament when Labor Minister Humphrey Mitchell gave an account of operations of the combines investigation branch of his department.

The enquiry, as Mr. Mitchell described it, is not designed to open up prosecutions of combines but to investigate the law and experience in dealing with combines,

Charge CCF Plans Socialist Schools

REGINA, July 25—(CP)—The Regina Leader-Post said today that delegates at a convention of the Saskatchewan Young Liberal Association here yesterday charged that the CCF was planning a system of socialist schools across Canada.

"The delegates also charged that teachers in Saskatchewan with 'CCF leanings' were training pupils in the 'way of socialism'."

The newspaper said that Wilfred Gardiner, son of Agriculture Minister Gardiner, reported a movement underway in his home constituency of Melville for establishment of a socialist school.

"We should go on record as opposed to the formation of socialist schools in Saskatchewan or in Canada as contemplated by the CCG," Gardiner told the convention.

Lord Sempill Says:

Monetary, Economic Reform Vital in Post-War Platform

The following address entitled The Post-War was delivered by the Rt. Hon. Lord Sempill before the Rotary club of New Westminster on Thursday, July 6. In view of the widespread interest in monetary reform and plans for the post-war era and the attention that Lord Sempill's views on such matters always command, The Edmonton Bulletin brings the address to its readers.—EDITOR.

By THE RIGHT HON. LORD SEMPILL

On the other side a growing number in both Houses of Parliament and outside are becoming interested in the vital question of economic and monetary reform as the main plank of the post-war platform. In 1941 I had the privilege of addressing my fellow Peers at some length on these matters and since then much water has flown under the bridge and many others have come to join the band—the small band that has been pioneering.

We may see by the growing force of informed opinion that the peoples of the world will not again endure those fearful periods of economic blight of starvation that have from time to time descended on the world like a plague. Peoples over the world have become conscious in an active sense that such need not be and they will not endure privation again.

The financial system was invented by men to facilitate the production and distribution of real wealth but instead of which it is standing between him and the enjoyment of that ever-growing volume of material wealth which power production has rendered possible.

Our daily life has been changed or should have been changed, had we taken full advantage of the potential offered by power production. But we have failed to adapt our thinking much less our pre-conceived notions, our sentiments, and our prejudices to the unprecedented phenomena with which we are confronted.

16 Captured Nazi Generals Ask Germans Resist Hitler

By M. S. HANDLER

MOSCOW, July 25.—Sixteen captured German generals issued a joint appeal today to German officers still in action against the Allies to break at once with Adolf Hitler and refuse to carry out Nazi orders and thus bring the war to its end.

All veterans of both the present and last world wars, the officers expressed their conviction that further struggle by Germany was hopeless.

"All the generals and officers who realize their responsibilities face the alternative either to wait until Hitler leads the German army to catastrophe and drags the whole German people down to the grave, or to answer with force—resist Hitler, refuse to carry out orders, break with the Hitler regime, thus finishing off the war," the appeal said.

"Don't wait until Hitler brings you to disaster. To fight Hitler is to fight for Germany.

The appeal was signed by Generals Voelckers, Gollwitzer, Mueller, Baron von Luetzow, Traut, Amler, Klammt, Steinkeller, Conrady, Trowitz, Engel, Michaelis, Mueller-Buelow, Gehr, Gottfried, Von Ermansdroff and Schmidt.

Each was identified with his former command, which included that of army corps, divisions and fortified regions. They represented the command of the former central group of the German army on the eastern front.

Claim Settlers Are Prosecuted Over U.S. Goods

VANCOUVER, July 25—(CP)—The Vancouver News-Herald said today in a newsbogo story Botolined Dawson Creek, B.C., that residents of the Peace River district who have been combing United States army dumps to recover stores allegedly discarded "Face the threat of prosecution by the U.S. Federal Bureau of Investigation."

"Prosecution of settlers for having American-made goods in their possession was launched in two instances," the News-Herald said. "But it failed for lack of evidence that the goods were stolen."

SWORN STATEMENT

"Meanwhile, a sworn statement has been obtained from one settler on destruction of a huge quantity of unused articles imported in connection with construction of the Alaska highway," the story continues.

"'At a dump two miles east of Dawson Creek, in a long, deep gully, I saw six big circular stoves of the Quebec heater type,'" the paper quoted the settler. "'They were new but had apparently been there some time and were weathered . . . I also saw about 50 big galvanized air vents for the tops of buildings. They, too, were new bus apparently had been sledge-hammered before being dumped.

"'This destruction is on such a big scale that the sworn statement can be duplicated 100 times. Now, the F.B.I. men are on the watch for settlers having U.S.A.-marked goods in their possession.

"WORSE" IN NORTH

"'The waste starts here and goes up the highway to Whitehorse and the farther north, the worse the waste. Since its disclosure, however, dumps have been covered with earth pushed up by bulldozers and watchmen have been placed to prevent anyone digging into them.

"'The amount of usable stores here is tremendous. The American authorities want to get rid of them, but Ottawa says no!'"

The News-Herald concludes saying that settlers believe the onus is on Ottawa to act by purchasing stores of American material.

American authorities were bound by an agreement under which the goods were brought in duty-free for the highway construction. Lack of transportation and high costs prohibits removal of most of the goods back to the United States.

INVESTIGATION URGED IN HOUSE OF COMMONS

OTTAWA, July 25—(CP)—Alleged destruction of stores on the Alaska Highway was brought to the attention of the house of commons today by Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative house leader. He quoted a Vancouver press despatch stating the United States Federal Bureau of Investigation threatened to prosecute residents of the Peace River district who were combing over dumps for discarded equipment.

"I think this matter should be investigated," said M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader.

He said he had just come back from the area concerned and had heard "very ugly stories."

Resources Minister Crerar promised to bring the matter to the attention of Prime Minister Mackenzie King with a view to having inquiries made and a reply given later. Mr. Crerar said his information was that the stores involved were the property of the United States government and under its control. At the moment, he said he was at a loss to know how the Canadian government could have interfered in their disposition. He was advised the stores consisted mainly of blankets which had been infected and food which was unusable.

of limiting or simplifying all matters not directly connected with the war effort. He may issue directives to the highest reich authorities.

"Goering has to adapt the entire public life to the requirements of total warfare in every possible moment," the Berlin announcement said, "in particular, Goering has to look after all public meetings and institutions to be shaped according to the aims emanating from total war. No forces may be lent from either the armed forces or armaments."

The governmental reorganization came with Russian army groups less than 50 miles from Warsaw, less than 150 from German Silesia, and within artillery range of east Prussia. In France, American and British armies were on the offensive. In Italy, two shattered German armies were reeling back toward the Gothic line in the north.

Albertans Tell Of Highlights In Italo Drive

WITH THE CANADIAN CORPS IN ITALY, July 25—(CP)—Stories the Calgary Tank Regiment had to tell of their fighting in the Chiana valley:

Allied Troops Launch Strong French Attack

the southeast of St. Martin. Street fighting raged in May-Sur-Orne, five miles south of Caen.

Fighting also swirled for the town of Tilly la Campagne. Front dispatches said there was savage, close-quarter fighting in indecisive battle after the British-Canadians cracked through the outer crust of German defences and ran into a bristling series of anti-tank positions and machine-gun nests. The Germans threw in batches of tanks to hold their lines.

The ridge highway which the British and Canadians were following leads to Falaise, birthplace of William the Conqueror, and to Paris. In the early hours of the push, while the advancing troops still were shielded by ground mists, the British and Canadians reached May Sur Orne for an advance of 700 yards and Verrieres for a gain of 1,500 yards. They also reached Tilly la Campagne, nearly a mile east of the road. All these points are five miles or slightly more south of Caen. Bad weather checked Gen. Montgomery's offensive last week.

PLANES POUND ENEMY

However, a limited force of R.C.A.F. medium bombers hammered German concentrations a little more than a mile ahead of the British-Canadian lines last night and again this morning, and the ground mist provided a natural screen for the advancing troops.

The operation broke a four-day weather-enforced lull on the Normandy front.

Montgomery achieved an element of surprise—although the Germans for two days have been forecasting a drive—by shifting the weight of his attack during the lull five miles to the west. This shift was from the southeasterly highway toward Vimont and Paris, 120 miles away, to the more southerly highway to Falaise.

British ground troops signalled the air force that last night's bombardment concentrated in the La Hogue wood southeast of Caen had been "most effective." The weather today was described as good with virtually a cloudless sky.

SIDE-STEP GUNS

It appeared that Montgomery was side-stepping the hidden wall of anti-tank guns just southwest of Troarn which Field Marshal Rommel had managed to implant during the recent days of bad weather.

British troops yesterday pushed into Troarn, eight miles east of Caen, but met stiff resistance and withdrew to the railway station just west of the town. Troarn is a German strongpoint blocking the highway to the big port of Le Havre.

The assault along the Falaise road was authoritatively described as a resumption of the push from Caen which started just a week ago today and bogged down after two days in the face of torrential rains, mud and the concentrated fire power Rommel had assembled.

CANUCKS FIGHT WAY INTO THREE TOWNS

By ROSS MUNRO

WITH THE CANADIANS IN FRANCE, July 25.—(CP)—A barrage from hundreds of guns launched the new Canadian attack in the chill, pre-dawn hours today, and infantry fought their way into the enemy-held towns of May Sur Orne, Verrieres and Tilly La Campagne, five and six miles south of Caen.

Fighting went on in these villages while other Canadian troops continued to advance against strong enemy opposition. In this early phase of the operation, the Canadians were being opposed by the German 272nd infantry division.

Some German armor already has appeared on the battle-field, and four tanks are reported knocked out so far.

The attack began at 3 a.m., and before dawn and throughout the morning there has been heavy fight-

PLANES AID ADVANCE

The weather is hazy but squadrons of fighter-bombers and rocket-firing Typhoons are zooming over the front while forces of medium bombers struck at the woods two miles southeast of Tilly La Campagne, a village on the Canadian left flank.

Canadian reported a lot of confusion among the enemy in the woods following the bombings—one before dark last night by 88 Mitchells, and another by a smaller force after dawn.

Western troops led the Canadian advance from St. Andre south through the adjoining town of St. Martin Le Fontenay, and into May Sur Orne.

HEAVY FIGHTING

St. Andre is four miles south of Caen and St. Martin immediately to the southeast of St. Andre.

The distance advanced was only about a mile and it was hard fighting most of the way, with the enemy mortaring the attacking soldiers as they went through the fields and along the ditches.

ers participated in the Normandy onslaught throughout today, streaming bombs and gunfire across an area several square miles and hacking a path for the American infantrymen attacking west of St. Lo.

Giant Lancasters of the RAF bomber command opened the daylight offensive with an attack on robot bomb platforms in northern France and a mysterious target which the air ministry said "appeared to be connected with the enemy's threatened use of long-distance rockets."

Although Stuttgart was the main objective of the night's attacks, Mosquito bombers again attacked Berlin and other medium and heavy raiders struck at Aachen, near the Belgium border, and Frankfurt, in southwestern Germany, both rail centres feeding the Normandy peninsula.

The bombers dropped an estimated 2,500 tons of explosives on Stuttgart and about 3,000 tons in all the night attacks.

The air ministry announced that 25 heavy bombers including two Canadian, were missing from all the night's operations, which also includes a raid on the oil storage depot at Donges, on the Loire river 25 miles northwest of Nantes, and attacks on enemy shipping and targets behind the enemy lines on the Normandy front.

In mid-morning small groups of fighters returned from the direction of Boulogne, and a few minutes later a very large formation of bombers and fighters, flying at a great height, crossed the straits in the direction of Dunkirk and Pas de Calais.

The air ministry reported that Lancaster bombers, hitting the oil storage tanks at Donges for the second night running, left fires that were still burning today. Aided by perfect visibility, the Lancaster crews dropped a "great weight" of bombs on 12 large and medium oil tanks and many smaller ones at the depot, the ministry said.

In addition to bombing robot bomb launching sites in northern France, the night raiders laid mines in enemy waters, the air ministry reported. An enemy cargo ship was damaged by coastal aircraft off the Isle of Guernsey last night, it was announced officially.

CCF in Sask. Will Not Take Over Breweries

commodity obtained for the province.

With regard to socializing natural resources, Mr. Douglas said the CCF now was canvassing the field of natural resources, including timber and oil, with a view to development through public ownership. However, he said he thought the field was big enough to support private enterprise as well.

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

REGINA, July 24.—Government ownership of the breweries, as advocated by the CCF party, is not contemplated by the CCF government in Saskatchewan, it was learned from provincial government sources Monday.

"If and when we make moves in the direction of government ownership in Saskatchewan it will be in the field of necessities of life, certainly we would not embark upon a program of government ownership by taking over the beer business in this province," said a member of the government.

Provincial treasurer C. M. Fines is in Ottawa with Premier T. C. Douglas to confer with Dominion Finance Minister J. L. Ilsley. While in eastern Canada Mr. Fines will confer with the Dominion controller of alcoholic beverages in regard to the shortage of beer in Saskatchewan.

MALT SUPPLIES LOW

Representatives of the breweries in this province have advised the Saskatchewan government that they cannot step up production of beer because the present supplies of malt allocated to Saskatchewan brewers were not sufficient to allow for increased output. The supply of malt in Canada is apportioned to the provinces in proportion to the amount of beer consumed in each province during a certain basic year before the outbreak of war.

The provincial treasurer will urge that Saskatchewan's quota of malt be increased so that the production of beer can be stepped up and the ration enlarged. In the meantime there will e no change in the beer ration in Saskatchewan.

Bombers Raid Long-Distance Rockets' Base

LONDON, July 25 — (CP) — R.A.F. heavy bombers attacked today "a site which appeared to be connected with the enemy-threatened use of long distance rockets," the air ministry said.

The Germans have asserted they were preparing great 10-ton projectiles which they could hurtle across the Atlantic—an assertion discounted by most military experts.

The air ministry did not locate the site. The main force of Lancaster bombers was used to pummel the platforms in northern France from which the Nazis have been launching one-ton robot flying bombs against England.

Reds Recognize Pole Committee Of Liberation

LONDON, July 25—(AP)—Russia announced tonight it would conclude an agreement with the Polish committee of national liberation, rather than the exile government in London, covering relations between the advancing Red Army and the civil administration of liberated Polish territory.

The Soviet's announcement, broadcast by Moscow and recorded by the Soviet monitor, said the Russians have "no aims in acquiring any part of Polish territory" and gave the view that the western Bug river is regarded by Premier Stalin's regime as the Polish-Russian frontier.

Russian forces are well across the Bug and are advancing swiftly.

FOLLOWS MANIFESTO

The announcement followed a manifesto issues yesterday by the Soviet-sponsored National Council of Poland setting up as a basic principle the transfer of pre-1939 eastern Polish lands to Russia, describing these as Ukrainian, White Russian and Lithuanian lands.

The committee said the Poles wanted East Prussia, most of Pomerania and other eastern German territory to the Oder river, which enters the Baltic Sea at Stettin.

Prime Minister Churchill has previously announced that he agreed with Premier Stalin on the recompensation of Poland with German lands for losses to Russia in the east. Russia also claims the Baltic states of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania; parts of Finland and pre-war Romania.

May Put Curb On Monopolies By Legislation

in order to have effective machineryy for post-war steps to curb monopolies and illegal combines. Once wartime powers lapse, it is recognized, this will become a serious problem.

STRONG INQUIRY GROUP

The combines commissioner has assigned a strong team to the inquiry, consisting of J. C. McRuer, K.C., Toronto; V. W. Bladen, University of Toronto economist, and A. S. Whiteley, of the combines branch, a recognized authority on patent pool monopolies. The inquiry is covering not only experience with monopolies in Canada during and before the war, but is also taking in information available from Washington, where several congressional inquiries have studied the problem of dealing with monopolies in recent years.

Mr. Mitchell's letter of instruction to Mr. McGregor, made public for the first time in parliament yesterday, revealed that anti-combine policies and curbs on monopolies in order to protect the consumer against these forms of business organization has become a major plank in the government's post war program.

Mr. Mitchell wrote: "Problems relating to international trade combinations such as international cartels and international patent arrangements have assumed great significance because of the possible effect of such arrangements on employment and domestic and foreign trade.

Already international discussions on the expert level have brought forward proposals on which we are not as yet in a position to give an informed judgment.

Russians Hoping For Big Attack On West Front

MOSCOW, July 25—(AP)—Prime Minister Churchill's visit to the Normandy front raised Russian hopes yesterday that the British, Canadian and American forces soon would hurl an all-out offensive that would drive the Germans from France as the Red Army was pushing them from Russia. The collapse of the German army on the eastern front, together with the situation in Berlin, has convinced the Russians that now is the supreme moment for the Allies to throw all the concerted power at their command.

Say Vichy Isolated By Maquis Forces

LONDON, July 25.—(CP)—Complete "isolation" of Vichy, centre of Premier Laval's puppet government, was reported by an authoritative French informant yesterday. This informant said all roads, railroads and telephone lines into the collaborationist capital are reported to have been cut by Maquis forces, although it was conceded that the isolation was essentially a harassing operation and probably only temporary.

Tanks in Italy Led by Young City Captain

bled as far as 15 miles a day in Chiana. The speed of their advance and that of the infantry which often piled aboard the tanks, was due in many cases to the work of the Recce troop under Lt. John Whitton of Port Hope, Ont. Their seizure of three bridges near Foiano Della Chiana before the Germans could demolish them prevented a possible two-day delay.

Two squadron commanders became casualties soon after the regiment was committed June 28—Maj. Don Taylor, Toronto, was wounded near Valiano and Maj. Alex. Leslie, Toronto, was killed shortly after, both by shells—but two young captains took over and commanded with veteran ability.

EDMONTON TAKES OVER

It was his 22nd birthday, although he was too busy to remember the fact for days, when Capt. Don Baker, Edmonton, inherited Major Leslie's command following the Major's death and an injury to Capt. Jack Buchan, M.C., Toronto.

For six days of advance he filled the triple role of squadron commander, second-in-command and battle captain. Baker finished high school in Edmonton three years ago, enlisted and joined the regiment shortly after Dieppe.

Maj. Taylor's squadron was taken over by Capt. Roy Butler, 25, Webb, Sask., and the third squadron worked forward under Maj. R. R. Taylor, Calgary, with Capt. W. G. James, Bowmanville, Ont., as second-in-command.

KNOCKS OUT TIGER

It was Cpl. E. C. Knetchel, Stettler, Alta., of Baker's squadron, who knocked out the one tank, a Tiger, the unit managed to destroy in its chase. Knetche land Lieut. J. L. Reid went forward on foot when a typical German rearguard was encountered late the first day.

They spotted the Tiger about a mile away. Knetchel backed his Sherman to the peak of a slope, fired twice and knocked the driver's hatch off.

By employing the same tactics of quick firing, then withdrawal to cover, Knetchel probably got another, a Panther. His crew included Tr. M. H. McPeak, Saskatoon, the successful gunner.

The squadron pushed through to a slope about 900 yards from Civitella, hilltop village where the Germans were reported to have massacred 100 civilians for the Partisan killing of three Nazis. Twice tanks botted ahead to the next crest, only to be forced to withdraw because of enemy fire on the infantry.

YEAR OF ACTION

The experiences of Baker's squadron, of advance, encountering clever rearguards, demolitions, blown bridges and finally the firm German stand southwest of Arezzo, were those of the others as one year of action ended and another began for a regiment that has seen lots of it since July 12, 1943.

Captain Baker is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh M. Baker of Edmonton. He enlisted for active service here in October, 1941. His father, Hugh M. Baker, is employed with the Alberta Liquor Control Board and was for several years secretary to former premiers of Alberta.

Ontario's CCF Leader in Alta.

LLOYDMINSTER, July 25. — (CP)—E. B. Jolliffe, Ontario CCF leader, said in a campaign address last night that "big business" now was hoping that the Social Credit government in Alberta would be re-elected to keep out the CCF."

Speaking in this town through which the Alberta-Saskatchewan boundary runs, Mr. Jolliffe said the attitude of big business in support of Social Credit had been made evident "all over the country."

Mr. Jolliffe said that the Alberta election on Aug. 8 was a preliminary towards the choice of the Canadian people in a Federal vote.

"The choice to be made is between monopoly enterprise and the Co-Operative Commonwealth," he continued.

Alberta people were to be congratulated on having driven the "old political parties under cover. The only old party candidates in this election are running in disguise as Independents, although in most other provinces there still are a few signs of life in the old parties."

Although the Social Credit movement in Alberta rose out of the progressive aspirations of the people, "unfortunately the leaders of the party, especially in the parliament in Ottawa, have placed themselves on the side of free enterprise, which we call monopoly enterprise."

FUNNY BUSINESS

"We're short of ponies for practice!"

U.S. Equipment Is Allotted to Canadian Govt.

as is. It's got to be the Dominion government's baby," he said.

"The U.S. government has not been authorized to go into the retail business. In fact the only right we have is to transport the stuff back to the United States."

PROPERTY SENT BACK

"The recent stories of wasteful destruction of equipment on the Alaska highway would not appear to be unfounded to the uninformed," Col. Strong said. "Thousands of tons of property is flowing back to the States from Dawson Creek, Waterways and Whitehorse. It has to have some economic value to warrant the cost of transportation and have a use when it arrives back there. I am informed that a lot of what has already been sent back will never be used."

He pointed out that a lot of equipment is damaged, unsanitary, incomplete or soiled and is judged unfit for army use by inspecting officers.

"There the human element enters into it," Col. Strong said, "and I'm not saying that there haven't been mistakes in judgment. It can be and probably is true that these officers' judgment was not always good, but they shouldn't be criticized for that. We all make mistakes."

REGULATIONS GOVERN

Equipment which is judged unfit by inspecting officers is certified by them and is disposed of according to regulations as outlined by the War Department.

"Mattresses or chipped enamel, condemned by a medical officer are destroyed, and some poor settler seeing the action thinks it looks pretty good material and doesn't realize that it is being destroyed under army regulations. A stove is condemned because it is not considered fit for issue to troops, and it is thrown on the dump. Some settler sees it and finds it is not badly damaged and discovers he can make it like new by taking a part from another stove and he starts offering to go and salvage them for his neighbors. The junk business may be a profitable one but we're not in it."

Parties of U.S. army men are cleaning up about 150 abandoned construction camps located along the highway. These camps occupied by fixed fee contractors were left in "disgraceful condition", Col. Strong said, and the men are burning trash and moving the other equipment to the collection depots.

Abandoned camps will also be turned over to the Canadian government which has agreed to pay the U.S. government the net proceeds for all the surplus equipment and supplies.

Col. Strong said he considered this a "very fair deal" as the material had already been judged as having no realizable value to the U.S.

Brigadier S. Lett Wounded in Action

VANCOUVER, July 25.—(CP)—Brigadier Sherwood Lett, M.C., D.S.O., has been wounded in action in France, relatives here have been notified. Brig. Lett, a well known Vancouver lawyer, was invalided home in 1942 after he was seriously wounded during the Dieppe raid. He later returned to England and was reported to have led an infantry brigade in the invasion of Normandy.

listment. No two months' residence qualification is called for under 1944 amendments to the Election Act as far as military personnel are concerned.

Enumerators will be appointed immediately by Mr. Thompson, to obtain names of servicemen qualified to vote in each camp. In addition, deputy returning officers will be appointed at every centre.

Voters at the camps will be supplied with ballots printed for their home constituencies. These will be forwarded to Edmonton immediately, in order to get them to returning officers of the proper constituencies in time for inclusion in the official count.

DIFFERENT SYSTEM

Because of the different system of vote counting employed in the multiple riding constituencies of Edmonton and Calgary, military ballots cast for these two ridings must be given to returning officers on the night of Aug. 8, so first choices may be counted.

In other ridings, the ballots must be in the hands of returning officers in time to include results in the official count, ten days after election day.

Colonel Brown has already left for Northern Alberta to set up machinery for enumeration of qualified military voters. He will conduct all such work north of Calgary, while Mr. Thomson will do similar work at stations south of Calgary.

(The Nazi party organ Voelkischer Beobachter said the Russians were striving for a "great decision" in Poland: That time-worn defence measures will not suffice, but "the decision depends on generous measures, namely, to other new strong forces behind the front which will absorb the withdrawing troops and form strong forces which finally will check the enemy." It added that "Where this line will lie depends on the time necessary to gather such reserves.")

ATTACK IN BALTICS

(The German high command said powerful Soviet infantry, tank and air forces were attacking on a 150-mile Baltic front, "in an attempt to break up the cohesion of our units who gradually are disengaging themselves.")

The pattern of the great Red army offensive now had unfolded, and in the opinion of the most experienced observers—captured German generals who watched their units beaten to a pulp—it is bringing Nazi resistance to the brink of final disaster.

The report that the central group of German armies had been almost destroyed was borne out by the unprecedented speed with which the Russians were surging across the Polish plains.

If the pace can be maintained—and the Germans were demonstrating their increasing inability to slow it down—Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky's Cossack cavalry and mobile armor will be thundering at the gates of Warsaw this week.

German Escapees Are Recaptured

Three German prisoners of war, who escaped from the Etter-McDougall Lumber Company camp near Winfield Sunday, were recaptured Monday, according to RCMP.

The three men, Kurt Braeumer, 23 years old; Lion Heinz, 24; and George Zeller, 22, were said to have answered the 5 p.m. roll call Sunday, but at the 10 p.m. calling out of names they were missing.

Police stated that the trio were refused entry into a dance hall at Elder Flats by residents of the district earlier.

Courageous Driver

BERKERSFIELD, Calif., July 25.—(AP)—When a truck laden with 1,500 pounds of dynamite caught fire yesterday, the driver stayed at the wheel until he was able to manoeuvre his dangerous cargo into a field well off the highway. S. C. Chairman Says:

Disallowance of Alberta Acts Denial of Democracy

NISKU, July 25.—(CP)—R. Earl Ansley, chairman of the Alberta Social Credit Board and a candidate for re-election in the Aug. 8 provincial general election, said in an address here last night that "democracy has been denied in Canada" due to Dominion government disallowance of Alberta legislation.

Mr. Ansley, seeking re-election in Leduc constituency, said Alberta measures dealing with money reform had been disallowed because financial institutions had power over the federal cabinet.

The people must demand there be a change in the federal government policy.

CCF CRITICIZED

Mr. Ansley and Norman Jaques, Social Credit member of Parliament for Wetaskiwin, both criticized the CCF which is making a bid for election in Alberta.

Said Mr. Ansley: "Socialism is a disease which breeds only in unhealthy soil."

"The Socialists are spending oodles of money in this campaign. High finance aided the rise of Socialism in Europe, the CCF victory in Saskatchewan did one good thing. It put a scare into Ottawa and now perhaps less provincial legislation will be disallowed."

"The CCF says that Alberta should follow the Saskatchewan lead, but Alberta got rid of the Liberals in 1921 (when a United Farmers of Alberta government was elected) not 1944."

"The present government at Ottawa is employing socialists to draw up plans for the post war period."

OPPOSES SOCIALISM

Mr. Jaques said the provincial election was being fought on federal issues and the question was "whether we shall continue under democracy or go under totalitarianism." The CCF said that the socialising of industry was good and eventually would apply socialism to farms, as a farmer he felt that socializing the means of production "went against every instinct."

The CCF at Ottawa had shown itself more interested in nationalization of banks than in supporting Social Credit suggestions to provide for better pensions and other social services.

"Because the Russians fight well, is that any reason why we should follow their method of government?" asked Mr. Jaques. "What the Russians do within their own country is no business of mine, but I do think the recent propaganda in favor of Russia has been responsible for the spread of socialism elsewhere."

NEED BUYING POWER

Mr. Ansley used an elaborate chart to explain that after the war there would be a chronic shortage of purchasing power with which to obtain the production of Canadian plants. The necessary purchasing power should be provided through a national dividend, plus price discounts and social services.

"Planning boards will be unable to regiment you if the dividend is paid, and so the socialists oppose it," he said. He hoped the time would come when government social services — which should be expanded for the present—would be largely unnecessary because Canadians would have sufficient incomes for all their needs without depending on the state.

Mr. Ansley said that literature endorsed by the CCF set forth ideas of regimentation similar to those against which the men now overseas were fighting.

Sask. Premier Seeks to Settle Debt For Seed

OTTAWA, July 25.—(CP)—Premier T. C. Douglas of Saskatchewan told a press conference here yesterday that Finance Minister Ilsley "seemed interested" in his proposal for a settlement of the province's $17,000,000 seed advance debt which contemplated interest forgiveness and assumption by the federal government of responsibility for half the principal.

The advances, dating back to 1938, amounted to $14,000,000 in principal and $3,000,000 in interest and the loan is subject to renewal for another two years on July 31.

RESULT OF DROUGHT

The obligation was incurred by Saskatchewan for seed grain after the 1937 year of drought. Under an agreement, bank notes on the seed grain transaction were signed by farmers and they were subsequently signed by the municipalities, the Saskatchewan government and the federal government.

The spry, 39-year-old premier sat in a big leather chair in a press gallery lounge and talked of his present mission and his future aspirations. He was accompanied by Clarence M. Fines, provincial treasurer.

Mr. Douglas said he wanted the seed advance repayment plan cleaned up on a program by which his government would assume the responsibility for collecting the other 50 per cent from the farmers and making adjustments in cases where payments had already been made.

TO DISCUSS PLAN

He said Mr. Ilsley was going to take his plan to a cabinet council meeting for discussion and he was hopeful of a definite answer before he returns Wednesday to Regina.

"What if Mr. Ilsley turns you down," asked a reporter.

"Well, we'll just sit tight and say 'I pass'," he laughed. He added that "after all, the Federal Government is the final guarantor of the advances, anyhow."

He said his 50-50 repayment plan was in accordance with an election pledge he made.

Other topics discussed:

Dominion-provincial conference—He said he understood the Federal Government had sent out a tentative agenda, but he assumed it had been removed from his office along with all other Dominion-provincial correspondence by the Liberal government he succeeded. "They left me only empty cabinets," he grinned, and added that this might be considered a handicap but he didn't like "reading up on old mail anyhow."

Co-operatives—Consideration was being given a plan to provide government encouragement for the establishment of a Co-operative factory for the production and distribution of farm machinery, he said.

Farmers of the three prairie provinces would be represented in the venture which would have a close association with the co-operative movement in the United States. International collaboration along this line, had already resulted in a Canadian—H. L. Fowler—being made head of the machinery co-opgrative for both countries.

He said that the production of the United States co-operative could hardly keep up with its own demands, but he foresaw the day when each country would have a specialized program with Canada contributing one type and the United States another.

NEWSPAPER PLANS

Newspaper—The CCF had no immediate hope of establishing their own daily newspaper, but it was on their long distance program and some day the party hoped to expand the weekly "Commonwealth" to daily proportions.

Brewers—He said he wanted the profit motive removed from the production of distilleries and breweries and he hoped to be able to reach an appropriate settlement with these industries which were patronized solely in his province by the Saskatchewan liquor authority.

He said he thought an agreement would soon be reached and he hoped "it won't be necessary to ever have to take over these industries because we have only so much money to spend and much more urgent matters to attend to."

Natural Resources—The CCF now was canvassing the field of natural resources, including timber and oil, with a view to development through public ownership. However, he said he thought the field was big enough to support private enterprise as well.

SEEKS DOCTORS

He left the conference to meet Defence Minister Ralston.

"I want to get him to release some doctors from military service for our urgent needs and also to let us have some prisoners-of-war for farm labor," he said.

Some Judicial Reforms Urged By St. Laurent

OTTAWA, July 25—(CP)—Justice Minister St. Laurent said yesterday in the Commons he did not agree with those who stated that to qualify for appointment to the bench in Canada a man had to be defeated as a candidate for public office.

Replying to John Diefenbaker (PC-Lake Centre), Mr. St. Laurent said he took pride in the appointments he made to the bench, especially in the higher courts.

HELD IN HIGH REGARD

The judiciary in Canada was held in high regard by the Canadian public, but it was known that some judicial reforms were necessary, said Mr. St. Laurent.

He agreed that judges' salaries should be increased in order to attract to the bench the ablest lawyers. It was only in the last quarter of a century that salaries on the bench ceased to be comparable with those for other comparable positions.

Mr. St. Laurent spoke during passage of a resolution to a bill which would allow judges to divide their annuity with their wives or to provide that their widows receive a pension. The bill was given first reading following passage of the resolution.

The minister said that a judge receiving a salary of $9,000 a year was entitled to a pension of $6,000. Between now and Nov. 1, such a judge would be given the opportunity of deciding whether he wished to have the whole pension paid to himself, or whether he wished to collect $4,000 and have $2,000 paid his wife. If he voted to have the pension shared with his wife and she survived her part of the pension would continue until her death.

Somewhat similar protection could be provided for the widows of judges who die in office. The widow would be entitled to two-ninths and in some cases one-ninth of the salary of her husband.

The option made by the judges between now and Nov. 1 would be irrevocable. New judges would have to decide what pension arrangements they wished to have made within 90 days after their appointment.

Mr. St. Laurent said it was not possible at this time to increase the salaries of judges or to provide pensions for widows of former judges.

SALARIES FROZEN

Salaries were frozen, and if an increase was granted to the judges persons in other jobs would feel they also were entitled to increases. Everyone was feeling the squeeze betwen the wage ceiling and the present-day rates of taxation. The judges were no worse off than anyone else.

If pensions were provided the widows of former judges, some might say the government was doing something new and was breaking the anti-inflation regulations. The widows had an almost "irresistable" case and something would be done for them as soon as possible.

Mr. St. Laurent said there were about 260 judges who would have to decide what pension arrangements they wished to have made.

Prominent members of the bar now were refusing appointments even to the high courts because the sacrifice would be too great for them to make, said Mr. Diefenbaker. By the payment of low salaries to judges, non-prominent members of the bar were being encouraged to accept appointments to the bench.

UNFAIR TO LITIGANTS

This was unfair to litigants who sometimes had to have their cases heard by men unfit for their jobs on the bench.

Too often appointments to the bench were based on political service, and too often a qualification for appointment was to be defeated candidate for public office.

Mr. Diefenbaker said a committee should be set up to study the question of salaries and the fixing of a retirement age for judges in courts where administration of justice fell under provincial jurisdiction. He believed that 80 would be fixed as the retirement age, although others had suggested 75.

A. H. Bence (PC—Saskatoon) said the judiciary should be free of financial worries. The income of judges was too low in comparison with comparable positions.

Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) and A. M. Nicholson (CCF-Mackenzie) compared the pensions paid the judges with the old age pensions and said it was more important for parliament to raise the old age pensions than concern itself with judges who received up to $15,000 a year.

Victoria and Banff Locale For Movie

VICTORIA, July 25—(CP)—The choice of Victoria and district as the locale for the filming of outdoor scenes for the motion picture "Son of Lassie" has been approved by Metro-Goldwin-Mayer Studios, Herman B. Webber, assistant director for the film, announced yesterday. Scenes to be filmed in this area include action shots depicting wartime life in Norway. Further outdoor shots will be shot at Banff, Alta., Mr. Webber said.

Polish Council Denounces Emigre Govt. in London As Imposterous Authority

By EDDY GILMORE

MOSCOW, July 25.—(AP)—The newly-established National Council of Poland declared in a manifesto announced yesterday that the Polish government in London was an "imposterous authority, incompetent authority" and called for "restoration to the motherland" of East Prussia and the other portions of eastern Germany.

In the manifesto, Dated July 22 at Chelm, Poland—liberated Saturday by the Red Army—the council said it was "the sole lawful source of authority in Poland" and explained it had set up a Polish committee of national liberation as the organ of executive power.

Establishment of the council was interpreted in Moscow to mean that, so far as the Soviet Union is concerned, the Polish government in London no longer represents Poland.

CALL FOR VENGEANCE

Calling for Poles to join the Polish army to "take vengeance upon the Germans," the manifesto said:

"Rise to the struggle for greatness of Poland, for restoration to the motherland of old Polish Pomorze and Opolaska Silesia, for eastern Prussia, for a wide outlet to the sea, for Polish frontier posts on the Oder!"

(An Oder river frontier would move the pre-war Polish-German boundary westward to Breslau and Stettin and would include in Poland all of east Prussia, most of Pomerania and part of Brandenburg.)

The council said it had named the liberation committee in confirmity with the constitution of March 17, 1921, and that main provisions of this constitution would remain valid until convocation of an elected constituent assembly.

Price, whose promotion to the position of engineer, maintenance of way, Canadian Pacific Railway, western lines, is announced by William Manson, western lines general manager of the company, Winnipeg. Mr. Price spent 37 years with the Canadian Pacific, and moves into his new post after three years as district engineer, Manitoba district. The change is effective July 1.

Conscription Issue "Dead" Says Godbout

NAPIERVILLE, Que., July 25.—(CP)—The war is "almost over and there can no longer be any question of conscription in this country," Premier Godbout said yesterday at a political meeting in this town about 30 miles southeast of Montreal.

"Hitler may be assassinated tomorrow," Mr. Godbout said. On the word of Mr. Churchill himself, the war's end is in sight. There can no longer be any question of conscription in this country, contrary to what our political opponents may say."

BRACKEN POLICY

Speaking in favor of the Liberal candidature of Rocque Boule in Napierville county for the Aug. 8 provincial general elections, the premier said it was "Mr. Bracken (Progressive Conservative leader John Bracken) and the friends of Mr. Bracken who want to impose conscription."

"Talk that conscription is looming because of the Liberals is nothing but a monumental farce," he said.

RIGAUD, Que., July 25—(CP)—Anti-war speeches in this province have given the impression in other parts of Canada that the people of Quebec are "a crowd of scoundrels," Premier Godbout said in an election campaign address here last night. He spoke in favor of Alfred Sabourin, Liberal candidate in Vaudreul-Soulanges.

"We have opponents in this campaign, who, since the beginning of the war, have never said a word against Hitler, Mussolini or the Japanese," the premier said. "Some people want to destroy our war effort with their speeches against the government responsible for conducting our country's defence."

Premier Godbout said he was against conscription and it was an "unchallengeable fact" that any Canadian fighting overseas was doing so because he had volunteered.

"I know there is no real Canadian who is unwilling to do everything he can to bring us victory."

The premier said: "The war is over. It is over now. Mr. Churchill has said as much."

Duplessis Charges Return of Godbout 'Death' For Quebec

CABANO, Que., July 25—(CP)—Maurice Duplessis, leader of the Union Natalonale party, said last night in an election campaign address that the Liberal administration of Premier Godbout had sold out the province to the "Ottawa centralizers." If the present government were kept in power after Aug. 8 "it would mean the death and ruin of Quebec." He added: "Quebec province must once and for all tell all its enemies in Ottawa and in some provinces that we intend to be masters in our own house and that we will not stand for any more ceding of rights to anybody."

Fatally Injured

SUMMERSIDE, P.E.I., July 25—(CP)—R.C.A.F. officials here announced last night that Sgt. J. F. Burgess of Amherstburg, Ont., was fatally injured Sunday when a plane he was piloting crashed a half-mile from the R.C.A.F. station at Mount Pleasant, 20 miles from here. Three crew members escaped with minor injuries.

RECTAL SORENESS AND PILE TORTURE
QUICKLY RELIEVED

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from Merrick Drug Stores or any druggist, and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money

British Subjects Living in Canada Said "Nationals"

OTTAWA, July 25—(CP)—Justice Minister St. Laurent said last night in the Commons that the Canadian Nationals' act described a Canadian national as a British subject residing in Canada.

Tom Reid (L., New Westminster), who speaks with a Scottish burr, said that no matter how long one has been in Canada he still is not considered by other countries to be a Canadian national.

"I went over to the United States once and the customs officer asked me what I was," said Mr. Reid. "I told him I was a Canadian. He laughed and said: "Oh, no, not with a tongue like that.'"

Evictions

Controller D. A. Balfour of Toronto urges Ottawa to adopt the policy that servicemen's families, facing eviction and without other accommodation, should be frozen in their present premises.

With this view practically every Canadian city will be in accord.

Edmonton, like Toronto, can take steps to promote the building of houses and to ease the housing shortage in other ways. But neither Edmonton nor Toronto has the power to offer to alleviate the emergency distress which follows peremptory evictions. This can only be accomplished by an amendment to the law. And only Ottawa can make that amendment.

It would obviously be an injustice to property owners to freeze tenancy all down the line. No one asks for such a step. But the number of servicemen's families in the Dominion who might be evicted is so comparatively small that any outlawing of such evictions could not seriously disturb property ownership in any case.

Other Canadian cities should endorse Toronto's demand.

We Retain "Our Own"

Prime Minister Churchill told Canadian airmen in Normandy that the British Empire is not fighting for reward but for honor. We seek no territory, he said, no oilfields and nothing that is not our own. And then the Prime Minister added these significant words:

"But what is our own in the Commonwealth — that we don't want any other people to express an opinion about. That we will firmly retain."

Lest anyone has any doubt about the meaning of this significant statement, it would be well to turn to the current agitation about India in the United States.

We are told in American news despatches that a number of highly placed political figures, including Ambassador Phillips, are urging President Roosevelt to make an issue about India. Mr. Phillips is said to have written the President in these words:

"I feel strongly that in view of our military position in India, we should have a voice in the situation there. It is not right for the British to say this is none of our business when we alone presumably will have the major part to play in the struggle with Japan."

It would be a relief to hope that this statement was the concoction of some mischievous columnist rather than an extract from an authentic document. But that relief is not possible. It seems to be established that this is exactly what Ambassador Phillips wrote.

Outside of the inference, blazoned all over the United States, that the Empire will not do its share in the Pacific (an inference which is both unwarranted and quarrelsome), the ambassador adds to the affront by implying that American military operations give the United States the right to interfere in the Empire's domestic affairs.

It was British enterprise that developed India, built schools and hospitals, eliminated savage superstitions, reduced the death rate, fought plagues and sickness and gave a peace to that unhappy country which it had not known for five thousand years.

Is it not natural, then, that Britain should resent the assumption that the United States should dictate her further policy in that country?

This incident is only a single sour drop in an ocean of international good will. But it is sufficiently sour to cause Mr. Churchill to say plainly that Britain is capable of attending to her own internal business.

That statement most Canadians will applaud.

Parole Nonsense

With the execution in Winnipeg of Albert Victor Westgate, there comes to an end a tragedy of criminal violence which reflects very little credit on the Canadian penitentiary system.

Westgate murdered a South Winnipeg woman in 1927. In 1928, he was sentenced to life imprisonment for the crime. In 1942, in spite of the fact that science knows sex murderers are always repeaters, he was released by a stupid and inept parole board.

Less than a year after his release, he had again committed murder—this time a sixteen-year-old girl.

The courts have judged Westgate and their sentence has been duly carried out. It is not for anyone, then, to condemn him further. He committed a brutal crime and he has paid a dreadful price for it.

But who is going to pay for the criminal folly of a parole board which turned this man loose under circumstances which even an amateur psychologist could have told them would have led inevitably to another killing? A girl is dead and a family is desolate because a few elderly sentimentalists insisted upon wallowing in spurious compassion.

Surely it is time that Canada's entire parole system be overhauled and amended to prevent these tragic blunders.

Different Revolution

There is a dangerous impression abroad that the present revolution in Germany is exactly parellel to the one in 1918 and that events this year may be expected to follow the pattern of events leading up to the German surrender at the close of the last war.

One well-known commentator takes this view and says this:

"That's what happened in the last war. The Prussians declined to fight to the end and sought a peace which would give them a chance to prepare for another war."

Nothing could be more historically inaccurate. It was not the Prussians who rebelled the last time at all. It was the common soldier who was disturbed by reports of privations at home and who, in many cases, had been infected with a communistic viewpoint.

This time the rebellion is not in the ranks but among the officers. It is a totally different thing.

It is true that in both cases Germany was and is torn by disunity and defeatism. But the danger in drawing the parallel too closely lies in the belief, a totally erroneous belief, that the consequences are bound to be exactly the same.

There is no doubt that Germany has received a mortal blow. But it would be fatal to become too confident about her immediate decease as a fighting power.

We suffered great inconvenience and loss more than four years ago when some of our leaders tried to force this war too closely into the pattern of the last one. It would be a serious mistake to make the same error in finishing the war as we made in the beginning of it.

Women's Work

It has been announced in London that all the work involved in calculating what war materials would be needed for the invasion was done by thirty specially trained women.

This quaint announcement should occasion no surprise even though the legend still persists that the more serious and accurate phases of war work belong to men.

Apparently someone has been convinced of the homely fact that a woman who can work out a family budget and keep her household supplied with adequate food in these days is quite qualified to calculate the needs of a more extensive enterprise.

Rationing, indeed, has placed women on a much higher mathematical level. It is the belief of many men that anyone who can wrestle with a set of ration books can wrestle with anything.

Social Security for Canadians

Ambitious Program Calls For Large Expenditure Of Money

By GRANT DEXTER

OTTAWA: At one stroke the federal government, in the family allowance bill now before Parliament, proposes an annual expenditure of from $200 to $300 millions. Payment of the allowances is to begin in July, 1945.

These are days of vast expenditures, but a few comparisons will help to put this single item of social welfare into perspective. At the time of Confederation, in 1867, total expenditure on social welfare, including relief, was one million dollars. In 1896 it was $4 millions; in 1921, $35 millions; in 1930, $94 millions; in 1937, $250 millions. This country spent $111 millions on education in 1939. And if you add welfare expenditures, as distinct from relief, to education, the sum would still be less than $200 millions.

The family allowance bill, therefore, is much the most ambitious social measure ever to come before Parliament. At a single stroke, it is proposed to spend about twice as much on family allowances as is spent, all told, on education; almost as much as was spent on all welfare and relief in 1937. Incidentally, this single item is about equivalent to a 50 per cent increase in the normal pre-war budget.

That the measure will be controversial is certain. Family allowances, traditionally, are disliked by organized labor because they are thought to weaken labor's case for higher wages. When family allowances are in operation, the factor of the size of a man's family may be ignored in fixing wages.

In Parliament, the opposition parties at this writing have not disclosed their views on the legislation. There have, however, been many slighting remarks from Conservative members—notably from Mr. Rowe, financial critic of the Conservative parliamentary group. Mr. Graydon, speaking for the Conservatives on the resolution stage of the bill, was non-committal. The CCF said nothing at all.

Mr. Bracken, the Conservative leader, in a statement issued on June 24, was critical. The policy, he said, "has all the earmarks of a political bribe. . . . It is time we asked ourselves when this legal bribery of the electorate is going to be stopped. . . . All this fanfare looks like an election bait to gain the support of the electors, or to fool them, or to do both." Mr. Bracken advanced an alternative policy: "Let the government lift the ceiling on low wages and let these expand up to at least the minimum of decency for mature, experienced workers." Mr. Bracken's alternative is that wages be raised to "a decent level."

Mr. Bracken, however, ignored the rural part of the population. He appears to be under the illusion that family allowances are to be paid only to urban workers. Actually, the chief beneficiaries of the family allowance policy are the farm and not the city population. Presumably, therefore, he would favor higher farm prices, fixed, if necessary, by the State, to take care of rural income deficiencies.

The Conservative press generally has attacked the policy. The Ottawa Journal described it as not merely the dole, but the dole in its most vicious form, a kind of national defeat. The Toronto Globe and Mail regarded the policy as one of "political expediency," whose chief aim is to make Quebec safe for the Liberals. "It is the hope of the government," said the Globe and Mail on June 8, "that the distribution of more than $100 millions of federal money annually to assist the large families of Quebec will help to keep the French Canadian vote solid for the Liberal party."

The Montreal Gazette opposed the policy, but not for Mr. Bracken's reasons. It preferred welfare to be provided more generously but much as in the past, through welfare organizations rather than blanket allowances.

Labor leaders have reacted in the traditional manner. Percy Bengough, of the Trades and Labor Congress, and Charles Millard, of the Canadian Congress of Labor, have both criticised the policy.

The most important opposition, however, has come from outstanding authorities on welfare work. Miss Charlotte Whitton developed the case against family allowances in "The Dawn of Ampler Life," as well as in a series of letters in The Ottawa Citizen. Miss Whitton is an acknowledged expert in this field and her criticism will be summarized in a later article.

There is, as well, a growing tendency to criticise the policy on racial or minority grounds. It is being said—the excerpt from The Globe and Mail being a fair sample—that Quebec will be the chief beneficiary. It is being said, as well, that other minority groups will profit unduly. And, of course, there are sectional antipathies. The provinces will not share equally in the payments, and opponents of the policy in the provinces which will receive least are tending to protest against what they regard as discrimination.

The most striking fact about the discussion so far is that there has been among the opponents little appreciation of the main purposes in view. Family allowances have not been adopted at Ottawa for political reasons. The cabinet has known all along that the political advantages were extremely doubtful. Indeed, the policy did not arise with the cabinet or the Liberal members of the government officials who are engaged in social work. It originated with the so-called brain trust, who got the idea from the McTague and Cohen reports on the wartime wage policy and who persuaded the government to adopt it on grounds which are only in part concerned with social betterment. The decisive arguments were economic—not welfare. The chances are that many of the social welfare experts in the government service would agree with Miss Whitton. The writer does not know this as a fact and it is to be noted that Miss Elisabeth Wallace, of the Canadian Association of Social Workers, has taken up cudgels for the policy and has publicly disagreed with Miss Whitton.

The point, however, is that the most powerful arguments for this particular form of social legislation are concerned with the national economy; the preservation of individual, competitive enterprise; the so-called market and price system. The aim is to achieve social betterment in such a way as will not injure the competitive system but, rather, strengthen it. Not the least of the merits claimed for the policy is that it will avoid direct ventures into government operation or regulation of business and enable industry to escape a crushing burden of uneconomic wages. The emphasis here is on the word "uneconomic." There is nothing in the policy to hold down wages or to hinder a rise based upon efficiency or increased productivity.

The policy, therefore, is much more important than appears at first sight.

SIDE GLANCES

"I learn lots of things from Pop—when I grow up I'm never going to spend an afternoon hollering at fish that can't hear me!"

The End of "Pump Priming"

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

The United States, the only large democratic nation which made "pump priming" and deficit financing a basis of national policy, is in the process of rejecting this theory and returning to economic sanity.

This is not apparent, of course, in the present wartime budget of the nation, which collects less than half its revenue from taxes and raises the remainder out of gigantic borrowings, but it is evident from the policies of both political parties. Both are seeking a balanced budget and a reduction in debt after the war. The theory that a nation can prosper continually by going into debt—the theory, indeed, that it must keep going into debt to secure prosperity—has been finally discredited in the United States, where it has been tried on a grand scale.

The altered views of the Roosevelt government, the greatest pump primer in history, have lately been revealed by Mr. Henry Morgenthau, secretary of the treasury. Explaining some previous remarks at a press conference, he said he felt "there could be a reduction in taxes after the war, but we had a very large debt and hoped they (the Congress) would keep both the individual and corporation taxes high so we can pay off the debt."

This is the negation of the pump-priming theory—the theory that the government must go continually into debt so that it may pump borrowed money into the stream of national purchasing power. The reliable United States News, of Washington, D.C., says that: "Basically, the first point of official agreement to date is this: Aim of post-war tax policy should be to balance the budget, not to serve as a device for pump priming. . . . That viewpoint is accepted by the Treasury. It has at least tacit White House approval."

The Republican party, in its recent platform, has adopted the same policy and says: "We reject the theory of restoring prosperity through government spending and deficit financing." The party platform in this matter, as in others, is contradictory, for while promising to reduce the national debt, it also promises to reduce taxation "as soon as the war ends." With a budget as large as that planned by the Republicans, debt cannot be reduced if taxes, and hence revenue, are reduced.

Nevertheless there appears to be agreement between both political parties that the era of deficit financing, which will give the United States a debt of something close to $300 billion at the end of the war, must cease when peace comes. The American people, in fact, have recognized the fact that their present borrowings, while justified and necessitated by the war, will lead to national bankruptcy if they continue long.

Even the leaders of the pump-priming school, who used to say that a $250 billion debt was within the limits of safety, are alarmed when they note that the debt will be $236 billions by the end of the current fiscal year, and still surging up.

In Canada, as in the United States, the facts of this danger are disguised by a wartime boom. From the prosperity of this boom some thinkers conclude that pump priming, if it is large enough, will produce continually full employment. They overlook two facts:

The first, the prosperity of Canada is based not only on government spending but on a record volume of foreign trade.

Second, government spending on its present scale, even if it were desirable, cannot continue without repudiation of debt and resulting ruin.

The United States and Canada—and all countries which wish to avoid this repudiation and ruin—are now faced with the obvious necessity of reducing expenditures and maintaining a comparatively high level of taxation for some time.

In Canada we could cut our war budget in half and we would still need our present revenues to balance it. The nation will expect the government to do better than that, to cut the budget far below fifty per cent of the wartime total and thus to make possible some reduction in taxes.

In the United States they are spending $100 billions in the present fiscal year and taking in about $41 billions in taxes. Only if the budget is cut to less than $41 billions can taxes be reduced. And this, of course, in the case of both countries, takes no account of the necessity of securing a budget surplus to reduce debt. Nor does it take account of the vital fact that national incomes may, and probably will, drop sharply some years after a post-war boom, and hence the yield of existing taxes will drop also.

Despite all these simple mathematical facts—despite the failure of pump priming to solve the unemployment problem in the United States before the war, despite the obvious fact that debt cannot go on rising at the present rate without disaster—there are still politicians in Canada and the United States who insist that we must continue on this course after the war. Some of the extreme New Dealers in Mr. Roosevelt's following are discouraged by his growing conservatism in finance. In Canada, we have Social Crediters and monetary reformers continually advocating a boundless inflation and we have Mr. Coldwell and the CCF proposing a huge deficit expenditure immediately after the war (when we should be enjoying an inventory boom) and basing a large part of their program on the fallacy that the state purse is bottomless, that internal debt pays for itself because "we owe it to ourselves."

Of course we owe it to ourselves, but the debt must be paid and, when it is too large, it is impossible to distribute the cost of it tolerably. In theory, a nation which owes itself debt is no poorer than when it started borrowing. In practice, the classes which must carry the debt through taxess collapse under the load if it is excessive, as they have collapsed in every country where deficits have not been arrested. Every nation in history which continued to plunge into debt, under capitalist or socialist governments, in the belief that it was no poorer because it owed the money to itself, found in the end that it was bankrupt and ruined.

Offsetting Hazards to Sight

Extra Care Is Needed to Safeguard the Eyes of Children

By MARY ALICE QUAYNE

There are thousands of people in Canada who have lost their sight, and countless more with defective vision.

Few people realize that the war, in addition to the other tolls it takes, increases the eye hazards for both children and adults, and so it adds to the number of people who have eye defects, and who may actually become blind.

The war, also endangering the sight of every fighting man, invades the home front in two ways. It has bred in children love for fighting toys, many of which are definitely dangerous, especially to the eyes. In grown-ups, it has increased the tension, which, in turn, increases the likelihood of their having glaucoma, a disease that comes to people over 40 as a rule.

No one is better qualified to advise us on the prevention of this tragedy than is an executive director of the Society for the Prevention of Blindness. This woman joined the staff of the organization after her work with the Red Cross overseas during the First World War, and has been active in its work ever since.

Dangers to Avoid

Proper understanding of a child's activities, and steering children away from danger is the first step that mothers must learn. Among the things for children to avoid are scissors with sharp points; instruments for removing bottle caps in the hands of the too young; whittling; flying grease from a hot kitchen stove; flying bits of metal from repair work being done around the home, and like hazards.

High school students suffer frequently from injuries incurred when doing laboratory experiments without instruction and proper supervision.

Equally important is the safeguarding of eyes while children are at work. Simple rules for small children to follow are these: Read with a clear, good light falling from above your shoulder. Hold the book about 14 inches from your eyes, and always read with your head up. Keep books clean, as a soiled page is hard to read. Avoid small type and glossy paper. Rest eyes frequently, and if they ache or the vision is not good, have them examined.

Watch for Symptoms

Mothers should watch for signs of eye trouble in children, such as attempts to brush away blur or frequent rubbing of the eye, or frowning. Stumbling over small objects, holding books close to eyes, lack of interest in distant objects, and inability to distinguish color are all signs of trouble, as are sensitivity to light, blinking, and irritability when doing close work.

Red-rimmed eyes, swollen lids, repeated sties and crossed eyes are danger signs too, and any of these symptoms should result in a visit to the family doctor or the eye specialist whom he recommends.

Although these things sound small, they really prevent blindness in many cases, if followed through.

Symptoms of glaucoma are the necessity for changing glasses frequently, a slight dimming of vision, a redness now and then, and headache after a prolonged stay in darkness. Pain may mean a severe case. You may see halos around street lights.

If you suspect you have it, or have any trouble with your eyes at all, it is wise to go to an eye physician, not just a man who fits you for glasses, and have a thorough examination. It is only then that your case can be discovered, treated, and controlled and blindness prevented.

Through the activities of this society trained "medical social eye workers" are working in many cities, and they are doing a splendid job of bringing people with glaucoma to the clinics or doctors and helping solve problems when treatment is needed.

There are classes called sight-saving classes in many schools for children with limited sight, who cannot keep up in the regular grades. There are tests to determine whether or not they need glasses or special attention. There are clinics for those who cannot have medical attention or eye examinations otherwise.

Hard Wood from Soft

From the C-I-L Oval

Perhaps no chemical discovery made during the past five years of war offers greater potential benefit to the people of Canada than that announced a few weeks ago—a process for the transmutation of wood.

Simple impregnation with comparatively abundant and inexpensive chemicals transforms ordinary wood into substances as different from the original as steel is from iron. The process reconstitutes wood to order. Hardness, finish, strength, durability and density can now be contributed chemically and controlled almost at will.

Wood now permitted to go to waste, or used only for fuel, can be imbued with qualities fitting it for use in furniture, home construction, or boat-building. In a few days, poplar becomes harder than hard maple, which in turn can be made harder than ebony which nature takes a century or more to grow.

The compressive strength of wood is so increased and other properties are imparted to such an extent that the result is actually no longer natural wood but a new material which may be termed "transmuted wood".

The process, based upon impregnation with methylolurea, makes wood markedly harder, stiffer, and more durable. It eliminates its natural tendency to swell, shrink, or warp with changes of humidity, and prevents the grain from rising when moistened. It enables more available, cheaper species of woods to compete in fields hitherto open only to scarcer, costlier varieties.

Furniture made from transmuted wood can be shipped throughout the world, to the dry climate of Canada's prairies or to the humid jungles of Central America, with assurance that drawers and doors will continue to operate smoothly and remain close fitting under all temperature or humidity conditions.

A "built-in" finish is imparted by the process throughout the wood. Mars or scratches may be removed by simply smoothing and rubbing. Color also may be imparted permanently throughout the wood by mixing a dye with the impregnating chemicals.

Even sawdust, shavings, and similar wood waste may be moulded into articles, and dyes or pigments incorporated. Other cellulosic and fibrous products, including cotton, farm wastes, paper, and leather, also lend themselves to treatment.

The process appears to be applicable to large items such as structural timbers, as well as to items as small as smoking pipe stems and musical instrument reeds. It can be employed to advantage in the manufacture of veneers and plywoods, flooring, furniture, textile and other machinery parts, sport goods, boats, tool, knife, and kitchen utensil handles; millwork; screen window and door sashings; rollers, wooden heels, shoe lasts, tanks, sanitary ware, laundry and chemical equipment, agricultural implement parts, and scores of other items.

Now that soft maple, yellow poplar, a number of types of pine, and other woods can be transmuted into woods with the desirable qualities of hard maple, oak or walnut, it will be possible to choose woods for beauty of color and grain more or less regardless of other properties. Veneers, furniture, flooring, casings, stair treads, doors, office and store equipment and cabinet work are some items in which cheaper woods might be used.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON. — From uncensored underground sources, which this column has found accurate in the past, comes the inside story of Hitler's row with Marshal Von Rundstedt and the gradual disintegration of the Nazi high command.

Von Rundstedt was removed as commander of the Western Front only a few weeks ago. But long before, Hitler had been suspicious of the Junker generals on his general staff. In fact, for years he has done everything possible to promote genuine Nazi generals, such as Marshal Erwin Rommel, to key posts. However, the Junker generals were too well trained, were such excellent soldiers, that they continued to retain important commands.

Drew Pearson

Conflict between the two army factions, simmering for years, is now at its peak.

Reports from neighboring European countries are that Hitler has never trusted Von Rundstedt. He had been an obedient servant of the Nazis, had carried out orders. But before the invasion, he had a significant conference with Hitler. Here is what happened at that conference:

Von Rundstedt told Hitler he thought the German army would succeed in smashing the Anglo-American invaders back into the sea. But he was more concerned about the ability of the Nazis to prevent a Red army break-through on the eastern front.

Shortly after the invasion began, Von Rundstedt realized that the Allies would be successful in establishing a strong beachhead in France. But he still had confidence in the ability of his men to prevent a major Allied drive through France into Germany. For the second time he went to Hitler and described the situation on the French front. This was just when the Red Army was beginning its tremendous drive.

Von Rundstedt warned that the war was lost for Germany and suggested a quick peace before the rest of the German Army was brought to its knees.

Hitler replied that he was determined to fight to the end. Von Rundstedt, however, stuck to his position that, if the Russian break-through was successful, Germany was licked and should quit at once. He said he would vote for a surrender.

The Russian break-through followed three days later, and Hitler, afraid Von Rundstedt might permit an Allied break-through in France behind Hitler's back, immediately relieved him of his command and ordered him away from the front.

Some Allied observers believe that Von Rundstedt has been killed on Hitler's personal orders because of his defeatist attitude. Fact is, that Von Rundstedt's dismissal has further impaired the morale of the German army, which on the Eastern front is now on the verge of collapse.

Mundare Tag Day Proves Successful

MUNDARE—The tag day held on July 12, netted the sum of $51.27. Of this amount $21 was collected at the Greek Orthodox church and $30.27 in town. The above amount was entrusted to the Ladies Charity club for the overseas cigarette fund. The women sent 300 cigarettes to each of the 35 local soldiers overseas, as a result.

The Red Cross centre has made up and shipped 400 articles from the beginning of the year. Red Cross work room classes will be held throughout the entire year.

Miss Colburn of the Lamont Health Unit held a canning demonstration Friday. Twenty women were in attendance.

The end of school activities has witnessed a large number of students leaving for Edmonton and parts north. Many have acquired jobs with the Northwest Service Command. Harvey Bodnar, Albert Bandura, Harry Shelast, Leon Sheptycki, Joe Harris, John Kostiuk and Butch Warshawski are all at work in Whitehorse. This leaves large majority of the N.C.O.'s of the Mundare cadet squadron out of their summer camp at North Battleford.

Never completely dominated by the enemy, the Nazis' Baltic lifeline will be slashed and Germany's northern coastline will be open to attack when Russia completes her conquest of Finland as this map shows.

Stettler Pioneer Dies at 75 Years

STETTLER—A funeral service, under the auspices of the Oddfellows' Loige, was conducted for Neil Brodie McGillivray, first mayor of the town of Stettler and first president of the board of trade. He was 75 years old.

Mr. McGillivray was born in Quebec in 1869 and he came west to Dakota with his parents and later moved to Ponoka, where his parents died. In the fall of 1905 he moved to the townsite of Stettler. Besides his other duties he also sat on the school board for many years. He ran a furniture store here which his daughter will continue to operate.

The Rev. Charles S. Pinder officiated at the service from the United church. Burial took place in the Ponoka cemetery.

He is survived by his wife and one daughter, Alma.

Mayor Kirby gave a report at the last council meeting of the action of the committee appointed to interview the city of Edmonton regarding Stettler debentures held by Edmonton. The debentures amounted to $10,450 and accrued interest of $575. While they were not legally recallable the city of Edmonton agreed to accept a payment of $10,550 in full. This makes a saving of $475 and also the town saves further interest charges.

Ewing and Whetsell district girls have formed a girls' club under the direction of Esther Anderson, home economist for the department of agriculture. Combining two districts is an experiment as it has been found difficult to get enough girls of the prescribed age in one district and the department has lowered the age limit from 12 to 10 years.

Attending the field day at the demonstration farm on the farm of C. S. Pals, of Castor, are R. Price, district agriculturist, W. S. Mackie and Gerald Page.

The Kanata W.O. at the last meeting held at the home of Mrs. Kenneth Cameron voted to donate nine wool blankets to the Red Cross.

The Bulletin's SPORT SHOW

By Jack DeLong

HAVING stowed away the championship of the Interservice Fastball League, the band of scrappy balltossers from H.M.C.S. Nonsuch, has spread all available canvas for a swift cruise in the direction of the provincial fastball title and according to Surgeon Lt. C. McCallum, sports officer at the Edmonton naval establishment, his boarding party is quite confident of arriving at Port Championship with a number of prizes in tow.

The Nonsuch team is an all-Edmonton aggregation and there are some mighty sweet young athletes among the navy balltossers. The lads in blue won seven straight games in 10 days and have shown no sign of weakening.

Many names familiar to sports fans of this city appear in the championship navy lineup.

Al Young, a star with the last year champion Aircraft Repair fastballers, Jack Ingram, defence stalwart with the navy provincial junior hockey champions of last winter, Stew Hart coach of Aircraft Repair champs last summer, and Kenny Cox who performed with the Arrows of the Senior City baseball league, are now teaming up on the starry navy nine. Cox, it will be remembered, was also leading scorer in the city junior hockey league.

Ivan Crook was another bright light in the junior hockey scene last winter, having played a bang-up game for the Canadians.

Ken Beecroft and Stan Engel both won fame with the champion Aircraft Repair fastballers of last season, while Falkenberg participated in many lines of sport before donning his country's uniform.

Stew Hart is also a big noise in wrestling, having held the dominion lightheavyweight title.

ATHLETIC SPORTS OFFICER

SPORTS Officer Lt. McCallum may be one big answer to the question of how the navy fastballers get that way. For Lt. McCallum is himself no slouch when it comes to athletic activities. Hailing from Winnipeg, home of many of Canada's outstanding athletes, the officer has won the intercollegiate swimming championships for the 400 and 200 yard distances. He won these titles while competing under the colors of the University of Manitoba.

In addition he played for several seasons with the nationally-renowned Toilers, championship basketball team of Winnipeg. Winter before last he played with the Halifax navy team that won the Maritimes' hoop championship.

He has also played rugby football, having turned out at times with the famed Blue Bombers of the Manitoba capital.

Tennis is another game at which the surgeon lieutenant is adept and he has performed in the dominion tourney finals on a men's doubles team.

Strangely enough baseball is the one game that the athletic surgeon officer has not had a lot to do with in a personal participation way.

But he's getting a great kick out of his fastball aggregation and the King's "Navee" is going to have a whole lot to say about who annexes the gonfalon in the current provincial softball championship playoffs.

Bomberettes Beat Walk-Rite "B" 5-3 in First of Intermediate Playoff

Pats Edge Out C.P.A. in Series Opener

Winning Run Is Driven In By Verenka

PITCHER Mary Verenka won her own game at Kingsway Park Monday night when she batted out a triple in the last of the ninth to drive in Jean Stewart with the winning run as Army and Navy Pats beat C.P. Airlines 4-3 to take the lead in the best of three senior girls' provincial fastball series.

Bomberettes took a 5-3 decision from Walk-Rite "B" in the opener of the intermediate girls' series in the hard fought curtain-raiser last night. Second games in both series will be played Wednesday night.

The Pats led until the ninth in the second game, but a walk and two errors in the top half of the last inning sent Evelyn McKinna around the bases to tie the score.

The Pats came back strongly in the bottom half of the frame to win the exciting fixture. Stewart got on base when chucker Jea Spargo errored on the former's grounder, and then Verenka's three-bagger sent her around the sacks to win the game.

Spargo turned in a nice performance on the mound for the C.P.A. girls, just allowing six hits. She struck out 10 batters and only passed four in the close contest.

A home run by Ruth Brault to centre field with Theresia Lafleur on base in the fourth inning produced two of the Pats' runs which played a big part in their win.

STAVE OFF RALLY FOR SERIES EDGE

Bomberettes held a Walk-Rite "B" rally to three runs in the opener last night to win 5-3 and gain the jump on their opponents in the intermediate series. Lois Stoughton turned in a one-hit effort for the winners and held them scoreless for five innings.

Two errors, a passed ball, a pair of walks, a wild pitch and a sacrifice hit in the bottom of the fifth gave the Walk-Rite club their three runs. The Bomberettes managed to retire the side with only the three runs crossing the plate to remain ahead where they stayed.

Led by Audrey Brockie, who was a member of the disbanded C.W.A.C. team, with three safeties in the same number of trips to the plate, the Bomberettes pounded out an 11 hit attack in registering their victory. "Bubbles" Ferrier and Betty Smith also did well with the willow, both getting two for four.

Interservice Fastball Champions

The navy balltossers in the above picture form the brilliant aggregation from H.M.C.S. Nohsuch that has scuttled all opposition to annex the championship of the Edmonton Interservice Fastball League. To win the title the navy lads defeated No. 3 "M" depot and disposed of No. 4 I.T.S. in straight games which would seem to prove pretty conclusively that sea power still holds an edge over air power around the local sport scene at least. The Nonsuch crew is now in the thick of the battle for the provincial title. That Nonsuch is prominent in sport is not hard to understand. The captain of the ship, Lt.-Cmdr. J. A. Dawson, is a former star rugby football player and all-round athlete. Shown above are: Kneeling, left, Stoker 2 J. Ingram, catcher; right, Stoker 1 Al Young, pitcher. First row, left to right: Ord. Smn. Stew Hart, left field; Surgeon Lt. C. McCallum, sports officer; Writer G. Khunke, manager. Second row: Ord. Smn. Stan Engel, catcher; Visual Signaller Ken Cox, 2nd base; Ord. Smn. Only Have One .300 Hitter

Browns 2nd Division Club According to Ball Averages

ST. LOUIS, July 25—(AP)—The first-place monopoly of St. Louis Browns advances the theory that in wartime baseball averages are just a lot of figures. The Browns, according to latest American League batting and fielding averages, are definitely a second division club, sixth place at best.

They have only one .300 hitter—Vernon Stephens—and his average has not been on the favorable side of that mark more than half the year.

Although presenting the only entirely veteran infield in the majors, the club's fielding averages ranks them sixth, two percentage points out of last place.

It must be pitching, says the Browns' fans, but the club's best pitching record—nine victories and five losses—is owned by Bob Muncrief. And Sunday Muncrief was the victim of a 12-1 lacing at the hands of Boston Red Sox.

The club has shown the ability to bounce back. Twice in doubleheaders they have lost the first game by more than 10 runs only to beat their opponents in the nightcap.

Fight and spirit don't show in the averages, but they may bring the Browns their first pennant in American League history.

Joins Navy

WINNIPEG, July 25.—(CP)—Abe Yanofsky, 19, holder of the Canadian chess championship, Monday enlisted in the navy here as an ordinary seaman.

Yanofsky, who has held the Dominion title for the past four years, won the North American championship in 1942.

57-Yard Dropkick Gave Art Sampson His Big Thrill

By ARTHUR SAMPSON
Former Tufts Coach

FISH ELLIS, Tufts regular kicker, had such a bad leg in our final game with Massachusetts State at Medford in 1927 that he could do nothing more than call signas and pass.

It was decided that six-foot three, 220-pound Red Fitzgerald would be called back from right tackle to punt. Fitzgerald had been employed as dropkicker.

Sampson

Massachusetts State kicked off and, after running a couple of plays, it was time for Tufts to punt.

I shielded my eyes as I saw Fitzgerald drop the ball in front of him point down as opposing linemen charged. I expected the ball to wind up in my lap, but removed my hands from my eyes as I heard a roar and saw the referee waving his arms indicating a score.

Fitzgerald had dropkicked the ball 57 yards and between the uprights. Having never punted, Fitzgerald either believed Ellis wanted him to dropkick or did what he could do best.

Massachusetts State became so demoralized at this unexpected and phenomenal feat that the team fell apart.

Tufts went on to win, 32-6.

Hockey Star Now in Normandy

A platoon of Canadian infantrymen, in command of Lt. Terry Reardon, shown above, famous hockey player with Hershey of the American League, and Boston Bruins of the N.H.L., cleans up road in Carpiquet, after Canadians drove out the Nazis in a bitter struggle for the airport. Terry is a brother of Ken "Beans" Reardon, who starred as a junior puckchaser with E.A.C. here, and later with Montreal Canadiens.

Kavanaugh Trophy Matches Tonight

Season's first matches for the Kavanaugh challenge trophy, a men's doubles competition, will be played at the Civil Service Tennis Association courts Tuesday, starting at 6:30 p.m.

The defending champions, Alf Blyth and George Docherty, will meet Hall and Drouin, the challengers from the Garneau Tennis Club in a best-o'-three matches.

The Kavanaugh Trophy is an annual challenge event, open to all city clubs. It was played last year for the first time.

WINNIPEG, July 25.—(CP)—Allan Boes, staging a rally on the last 18 holes, Saturday won his fourth consecutive Manitoba amateur golf championship. He defeated George Cotton one up in the 36-hole final. Boes started the last 18 holes two down and won on the last hole.

Feature To Mr. Ever

Betting Shows Increase Opening Day at Saskatoon

By LOU DAVIES

SASKATOON, July 25—Mr. Ever, the prairie sprint champion a year ago, raced back into the headlines as the Saskatoon fair meet got away to a brilliant start on Monday with pari-mutual play showing an increase of over 30 per cent.

Victory was sweet for Mr. Ever as he ran away with the Elite Handicap and en route he trounced Blue Stone, the swiftest horse on the grounds. It was proven conclusively to the fans that Blue Stone may be a whiz at five furlongs but cannot make six and a half furlongs.

Away in front as usual, Blue Stone was going easily until he left the back stretch and then it was obvious he was through. Mr. Ever swept into a long lead and Blue Stone was no better than sixth as Calla Donna ran into the place position.

Mr. Ever paid $9 even for his victory.

Jockey Roy Russell of Calgary stole the other featured spot on the card. He rode four winners, including the Daily Double pair.

Russell won handily with Even Trade in the first and came from behind with Double or Nothing in the second for a double of $20.20. He followed up with an impressive win aboard Lady Lev and topped off the day by getting the distance-loving Thirsk home first over a mediocre band of performers in the sixth.

Thirsk was the only favorite to win all day.

Biggest upset came in the seventh. Wise Brook, another of the recent Marks Stable acquisitioned from Chicago, won in a canter to pay $16.20 and the top-heavy favorite Yeo Marcus was going his best to get up for second money. His presence cut the quinella to a meager $7.45.

Sal Bartolo Wins 10-Round Decision

BUFFALO, N.Y., July 25—(AP)—Sal Bartolo, 129¾, Boston, listed as world's featherweight champion by the N.B.A. in 38 states, won a unanimous decision over Mike Martyk, 129, St. Catharines, Ont., in a scheduled 10-round non-title feature of a Hudson Boxing Club fight card last night bfore an estimated 2,500 fans.

Yanks to Meet Signals Tonight

Signals and Yanks, the two American teams in the City Senior Baseball League tangle tonight at Renfrew Park starting at 7 o'clock in a scheduled fixture. A win for the Signals would put them a full game ahead of the Arrows while victory for the Yanks would give them a comfortable lead for the present.

FO Elmes, Welch Clash in Final Of District Golf

FO. J. Elmes of Medicine Hat and Joe Welch of Red Deer were scheduled to battle in a 36-hole final for the Calgary Herald Trophy, emblematic of the Alberta district golf championship over the Edmonton Golf and Country Club course Tuesday.

The R.C.A.F. officer from the south qualified for the final Monday by winning two 18-hole matches scoring an easy triumph over a fellow air officer, J. M. Brown of High River, 7 and 6 and later putting the skids under R. Dunlop of Lethbridge, 3 and 2.

Welch fought his way to the final round by defeating C. H. McMillan of Wetaskiwin, 4 and 3 and winning from J. Carle, Vegreville, 3 and 2.

Results Monday are as follows:
Elmes beat Brown, 7 and 6.
Dunlop beat Haydamak, Drumheller, 5 and 4.
Welch beat McMillan, 4 and 3.
Carle beat Exey, Hughenden, 1 up.

Selecting Others Real Problem

Twilight Tear Almost Cinch For Horse of Year Honors

NEW YORK, July 25—(AP)—Twilight Tear is almost a cinch to win the horse of the year and three-year-old championship honors. But after handing these accolades to the wine-colored filly from Warren Wright's Calumet Farm, the selection of the other titleholders becomes a real problem.

Although her 1944 earnings of $128,790 don't match Pensive's $157,975, the Calumet filly is the only horse that has done everything asked of her this season. If she is voted the horse of the year and the three-year-old championship it will be the first time that one of her sex ever has won such high honors.

The two-year-olds, however, are different problem.

Lieut. Howard Lasker's Flood Town swept all before him in the east and then travelled west where he finished third in his debut and wound up fifth in the Arlington Futurity, won by John Marsch's Free For All, who is unbeaten in four races and has won $62,025.

Also to be considered are Walter M. Jeffords' Pavot, an easy winner of his three starts, including last Saturday's $25,000 Mayflower Stakes at Suffolk Downs; Lieut. C. C. Whitney's Jeep and Burg-El-Arab, and Gertrude Donovan's Fighting Don.

The handicap division is even more jumbled. Early in the season the title appeared to be between Mrs. Payne Whitney's Devil Diver and Wright's Sun Again, but the former has been out of competition for several weeks and Sun Again has been retired for the season. In the interim, Four Freedoms, Devil Diver's stablemate, and Mrs. Ed. Mulrenan's First Fiddle have taken over, with the latter holding a slight edge.

TORONTO, July 25—(CP)—Those race fans who were afraid the new 5 per cent tax levied by the Ontario government would put a damper on wagering at the tracks can dry their tears now. The betting hasn't suffered a bit—in fact the Ontario tracks in the first half of the season showed a tidy $1,164,819 increase over the same period last year.

In the first 49 days of the track season, the parimutuel machines clicked merrily to the tune of $11,218,543, against last year's first-half total of $10,053,724, according to official figures given by Bobby Hewitson in the Toronto Telegram.

Most remarkable boost was at Fort Erie track, which bettered its last season record by $579,671. That's quite a jump, but the track had an exceptionally poor season in 1943, so actually it only regained some lost ground.

Punters at Woodbine chalked up the biggest betting total for a seven-day meet, when $2,157,493 were thrown to the horses.

All of which goes to show that it doesn't matter much how much the government nicks the mutuels for. Even if 22 per cent of all money wagered went to Mr. Iisley's department, the fans still didn't mind kicking through with their hard-earned mazuls—as long as they had the chance to win an occasional bet.

HERE AND THERE

Sammy McManus, who cavorted with Moncton Hawks when they captured the Allan Cup in 1934 and 1936, may turn up with St. Louis in the American Association next winter. The aging Sammy is reportedly thinking seriously about a come-back in pro hockey circles.

Jim (Toronto Globe and Mail) Coleman did some calculating, and decided Fred Schelke's speedy Shepperton would be a much better investment than those gold mine stocks currently enjoying such a rage. A $100 investment on Shep in each of his 14 starts this year would have returned you an even $1,400. Shep won 12 of his races.

Baseball is flourishing beneath the midnight sun. Alaska, jammed with servicemen and construction workers, is going for the game strongly, with 13 teams in the senior league at Anchorage, and similar enthusiasm shown in most other centres.

Durocher Fined

BROOKLYN, July 25—(AP)—Manager Leo Durocher of the Brooklyn Dodgers received notice from Ford Frick, president of the National League, before last night's game with the Pirates, he had been fined $50, as a result of his verbal row with Umpire Bill Stewart during the progress of the second game of Sunday's doubleheader. When ordered off the bench by Stewart, Durocher hesitated. The Brooklyn manager engaged in words with Stewart before last night's game started.

Toronto Junior Cops Swim Honors At Canadian Meet

VANCOUVER, July 25.—(CP)—Pretty little 16-year-old Doris Geldard of Toronto was chosen most outstanding junior swimmer at the Canadian championship swimming meet which closed here Saturday.

Roddy Andrews, swarthy athlete from San Francisco, was classed most outstanding swimmer of the meet. Already holder of seven American swim records, he took with ease two Canadian championships Saturday, the senior men's 150-yard medley and later the 440-yard freestyle senior men's championship.

More than 3,000 spectators were on the stands as Toronto teams got away with the 400-yard senior men's relay Canadian championship and the servicemen's 150-yard medley relay.

Winnipeg took the Canadian championship in the 400-yard senior ladies relay and Quebec came out on top in the 200-yard freestyle junior girls relay with the British Columbia-Vancouver team a close second.

Blonde Shirley Muir of Vancouver got away with two more Canadian championships when she took the 800-yard freestyle senior ladies and the 100-yard freestyle senior ladies. This gives Shirley a total of four championships won during the meet.

More than 80 contestants from all parts of Canada and the United States took part in the meet which was sponsored by the Vancouver (Kinsmen) Milk for Britain fund.

NEW YORK, July 25—Bill Bill Nicholson, the Cub's color-blind clouter, is making such a bombing defence of his National League home run championship that the percentage now is in his favor to retain it.

Over the week-end, the Maryland slugger blasted out five homers to bring his total for the season to 21, dead-locking Mel Ott of the Giants at that figure and equalling two major league records with his splurge.

Nicholson

Brawny, brown-haired Nicholson with a dental-ad smile, said in the dressing room after Sunday's Cubs-Giants doubleheader, "I don't know who'll win the home run title this season; but whoever does will have a much larger total than the 29 with which I took it last year—probably about 40.

HITS BEST IN LAST HALF

TWO factors favor Chicago's right fielder to wind up with 40 or more four-baggers. He has garnered his 21 in the Cubs' 81 games. This pace would give him 39.9 homers for 154 games. Ott, his only close competitor, made his 21 in the Giants' 87th contest—a pace that would mean 38.3 homers for 154 encounters.

Even more important, however, is the fact that Nicholson always hits his best in the season's second half. This was particularly true during the '42 and '43 campaigns when, as the big fellow explains, 'because of spring training in the north, it seemed to take me longer than usual to get thawed out." The Cubs trained again in the north this year; and Nicholson indicated that he's just about "thawed."

Although 28-year-old Bill is so color blind that he can't tell a blonde from a brunette, his optics certainly ogled the onion in Sunday's twin bill. He walloped three round-trippers in the opener, the first major leaguer to turn the trick in one game this season. These, combined with the one he slugged the last time at bat on Saturday, equalled the major league mark for consecutive home runs. In addition, a homer in Sunday's night cap gave him four for the double-header, a new National League mark and one that equals the major league record held by three American circuit performers.

TOPPED NATIONAL IN '43

LAST season, Nicholson's top National total of 29 points was five.

Less than the 34 rolled up by Rudy York of the Tigers, home run king of the majors for '43. However Nicholson led both circuits in runs batted in, with 128. Again big Bill is leading both circuits in the R.B.I. department, with 64, after adding seven Sunday. Returning to the home run column, it seems certain that a National leader will wind up home run king of the majors this season, since Nicholson and Ott have taken a commanding lead at 21, with their three nearest competitors holding only 12—Phil Weintraug and Whitye Kurowski of the National circuit, and Bobby Doerr of the American.

Nicholson sees no let-down in National League pitching this season, although he admits that the ball seems livelier. The two pitchers that give him most trouble are southpaw Max Lanier of the St. Louis Cardinals and right-hander Nate Andrews of the Boston Braves.

Why has he never had trouble with umpires—never been thrown out of a game during his five seasons with the Cubs, the big fellow grinned as he rose from his locker stool and said, "guess it's because I'm always swinging at the close ones—never take a third strike. That way—I make the mistakes; not the umpires."

Sports . . . . Roundup

By FRITZ HOWELL
(Pinch-Hitting for Hugh Fullerton, Jr.)

NEW YORK, July 25—(AP)—The 64-cent questions. No fair peeking until you try to answer 'em, but you'll find the answers to these baseball questions (first of a series) down at the end of the column.

No. 1—What pitcher beat the great Walter Joonson six times by a score of 1-0?

No. 2—What pitcher lost the most games in the majors one season, and the following year won the most?

Today's jest star.

Jack Durkin, Syracuse Herald-Journal: "The next major league team to appear against the Sampson Naval Base will be the Cincinnati Reds—and Johnny Vander Meer will appear against them—the best $54-a-month pitcher they'll ever face."

Disa and Data

Lee Q. Murray (his real name is Emanuel Lu Verne Murray) who meets Elbert (Turkey) Thompson Friday in a Madison Square Garden 10-rounder, wears sideburns all the way down to here. Since Secretary-treasurer William J. Manley married the only girl employee in the International League offices 24 years ago, there hasn't been an office girl, stenographer or secretary of the weaker sex employed there.

Answers to the 64-cent questions: No. 1—Babe Ruth; No. 2—Adolph Luque of Reds, lost 23 in 1922 and won 27 in 1923.

South California Expects To Have Another Fine Club

By HARRY GRAYSON

LOS ANGELES, July 25.—As Jeff Cravath conducts summer practice at Southern California another fine football team looms for the traditionally-strong Trojans.

The Cardinal and Gold has eight lettermen from the squad that kept its all-winning Rose Bowl record intact by rather surprisingly shellacking Washington last New Year's Day.

Coach Cravath, hoping to benefit by the Pacific Coast Conference's modification in the rules to permit forward passing from any point behind the line of scrimmage, has a single two-year letterman in the person of quarterback Jim Hardy, who threw touchdown passes in the 29-0 Victory over Washington.

Callanan was a high-scoring halfback who tallied twice in Pasadena. Gray, left end last trip, also scored twice in the Rose Bowl, is being converted into a back.

TENTATIVE STRING

Lining up a tentative frist string for photographers, Cravath, the old centre and nephew of the one-time National League home run king, Cactus, used seven of these eight veterans.

Ends were Don Hardy and Harry McKinney, a transfer from Oklahoma. Jim Callanan wasn't on hand opening day. Tackles were Ferraro and Romer. Guards were Wally Crittenden, a two-letterman at Loyola of Los Angeles in 1940-41 who came to Southern California following two years in the Navy, and Dave LaVelle, who played on Troy's undefeated junior varisty of last fall.

Centre was Russ Antles, nonletterman fullback of last season who is making good at his new post. Jim Hardy was the quarterback, George Callanan and Gray the halfs and Whithead the fullback.

The team averages 191 over all, with the line at 197 and the backfield at 182.

The schedule is an interesting one, including two engagements each with U.C.L.A. and California, Southern California's foremost rivals now playing football. Only two games will be played away from the Los Angeles Coliseum. Southern California plays its first varsity night game—against Washington on Monday, October 23.

HAS FULL SCHEDULE

The card: Sept. 23, U.C.L.A.; Sept. 30, College of the Pacific; Oct. 7, California; Oct. 14, Saint Mary's Pre-Flight in Fresno; Oct. 28, Saint Mary's; Nov. 4, San Diego Naval Training Station; Nov. 11, bye; Nov. 18, California in Berkeley; Nov. 25, U.C.L.A.

Southern California has two brother acts in the Hardys and Callanans.

Southern California has everything in athletics—football, basketball, track, hockey and what have you.

Hanson May Become A Sports Officer

WINNIPEG, July 25—(CP)—The Winnipeg Tribune said Monday the appointment of Lieut. Melvin (Fritz) Hanson, former Winnipeg rugby star, as sports officer for M.D. 10, was under consideration by district officials.

Hanson, who ran 80 yards for a touchdown when Winnipeg Blue Bombers defeated Hamilton Tigers for the Grey Cup in 1935, now is in Winnipeg on leave.

Bard of Brooklyn Has Endless Faith In Dodger Fandom

By MICHAEL O'HARA

BROOKLYN, N.Y., July 25—(CP)—As Brooklyn's once-beloved Bums stumble deeper and more hopelessly into the National League cellar, there rises over the lesser wailings the soul-felt dirges of the bard of Brooklyn.

He is Roy Richard, the singing newsdealer long familiar to fans arriving by subway at Ebbets Field, home of the impotent Dodgers, currently shamed by a record of 21 losses in their last 24 games.

Emerging from the subway at Empire Boulevard and Flatbush Avenue, one is greeted dolorously by the bard who flaps his copies of the Brooklyn Eagle and singsongs: "Oh, the Dodgers need and undertaker no-o-o-w-w-w. It's too late for the doctor no-o-o-w-w-w. Oh, it's weepy-time in Flatbu-u-u-sh!"

Richard, however, has infinite faith in Brooklyn fandom.

As the crowd dragged its way out of Ebbets Field after the 11-0 thrashing their team took Saturday, there was the minstrel, his newspapers brandished on high, jauntily singing:

Six Straight Victories For Tiger Hurler

Trout Registers 14th Win As Detroit Blanks A's 1-0

DETROIT, July 25.—(AP)—Paul Trout gained his sixth straight victory and 14th of the season last night as Detroit Tigers blanked Philadelphia Athletics, 1-0, in a twilight American League game before 10,805 spectators. Rudy York doubled Roger Cramer home with the only run in the fourth.

Trout faced only 31 batters in a duel with Bobo Newsom and permitted no one to reach second base. Both pitched four-hitters, Newsom retiring in the eighth inning for a pinch hitter.

Joe Berry pitched a hitless eighth. The victory gave Detroit a split of the four-game series. The defeat was Newsom's 10th against seven victories. Trout has lost eight.

DETROIT, June 25—(AP)—War Stone, six-year-old gelded son of Man O'War owned by Anthony Graffagnini of New Orleans, broke his neck and died in an accident at the starting gate Monday before the running of the seventh race at the Detroit track.

War Stone reared at the starting gate, tossing his jockey, Tommy Bates, who was unhurt. The horse smashed his head on the gate and was dead when attendants arrived.

In Hospital

NEWARK, N.J., July 25—(AP)—Lem Franklin, 203-pound heavyweight from Chicago, is in a serious condition in the city hospital after being knocked out by Larry Lane, 192½, of Trenton, in the ninth round of a scheduled 10-rounder at Meadowbrook bowl last night. Dr. Herbert Connor said Franklin had suffered a concussion of the brain and was in a serious condition.

Money Reform Vital Part of Post-War Plan

conscious of the glaring absurdities but what are we doing to bridge the gap — the growing gap between the forward rushing world of economic fact and the backward looking world of economic thought?

We have held certain ideas for so long that it is taking two world wars and the actual and visible disruption before our eyes of the system which was the expression of our thoughts to induce us to give a plain, clear and thoughtful hearing to those who have been pointing out the directions in which reform is so vitally needed.

As an engineer concerned with production I am convinced that benefit to all, can be realized but we must face realities before it is too late and fully appreciate the two main material factors of our modern civilization.

(a) The influence of science and technology on our daily lives.

(b) The true function of money and how it is created.

Today prices are higher than at the beginning of the war, that is for such articles that are not controlled in price. There are less goods and services to buy as so many are engaged in the forces or on the war production.

There is more employment and despite taxation, savings campaigns and the like, more money in circulation than ever before. More money, less goods. When trade is bad in times of peace, prices fall, goods are destroyed, production is restricted—not because people have enough but simply because market prices fail to cover the cost. Money is scarce—goods are plentiful—people starve.

COST-OF-LIVING INDEX

Thus you could show in a simple manner by a pair of scales the relationship between the amount of goods and the amount of money in circulation. In other words, this is a cost of living index.

The function of every government, it is suggested, is to keep such an index constant and in order to do so, to spend such money as may be needed into existence, without creating a capital debt, to the benefit of all and the prejudice of none.

What do we really mean by power production? Its effects are everywhere around us but we all too often neither realize what they are nor see that all may enjoy them.

Let me give you one example. Our daily paper. You will agree that we should be lost without it. Have you ever thought how many men it would take to write out one copy if all the news was available at the right time? The answer is simple as one man can write twenty-five words a minute and as the average daily paper has 45,000 words it would take 30 hours a copy.

The allotted time for publishing is only 5 hours and therefore 6 men would be needed for each copy. Thus for a circulation of two million copies 12 million men would be needed exclusive of those engaged on production and distribution. As it is some 500 men under the direction in this particular case of my friend Lord Beaverbrook, with machinery do it all. In this case the effectiveness, mark you, not the efficiency which is quite a different thing, has been multiplied 24,000 times. That is but one example.

FUNDAMENTAL CHANGE

Surely if there is a fundamental error in our financial and economic system, then it must be apparent that there should be a fundamental change in our thoughts on these subjects before any effective remedy will be accepted. For my text I would turn not to a politician, economist, financial or business magnate, but to a Scots soldier, a man of reality — of action, the Viceroy of India, who said but a few months ago, "It has always seemed to me a curious fact that money is forthcoming in any quantity for war, but that no nation has ever yet produced the money on the same scale to fight the evils of peace—poverty—lack of education — unemployment — ill health. When we are prepared to spend our money and our efforts against them as freely and with the same spirit as against Hitler, we shall really be making progress."

We will all re-echo his Excellency's questions. Why did we allow our people to remain idle when they might have been employed to remove some of the many blots on what we call civilization?

The peoples of Germany secured years of economic security in the home but at what a price, the surrender of their political and spiritual freedom. Those who are anxious to work, who see their women and children starve are told that they cannot work as there is a sufficient supply of goods on the market and their services are not required to produce any more, and they are offered a miserable dole. Unemployment is in fact a by-product of under-consumption. A shortage of effective demand for the goods the nation is capable of producing and for which the peoples are yearning for their daily welfare.

SURVEY SITUATION

Let us turn for a moment and look at fundamentals. Surely we are all agreed that the production of real wealth—that is of goods and of services—is limited only by the man-power, materials, and machinery available.

In this case, therefore, the true function of money is to serve as a convenient medium of exchange and also a measure of value.

If we look into details we see that in Britain today more than 90 per cent of the money used is in the form of cheques, or book entry money. This is referred to as bank credit.

Less than 10 per cent is in coins or notes. Now we will all agree that the value of money is determined by the goods and the services for which it can be exchanged. We also know that book entry money or credit being valueless itself, is virtually costless to create.

PRODUCTIVE CAPACITY

Modern technology is such that if the productive capacity of any nation is operated fully there will be a steady increase each year in the amount of goods and services produced. Now to maintain full production it is necessary to increase the amount of money in circulation each year by the value of this increase, otherwise the price level index is bound to fall causing restriction and unemployment.

The creation and issue of the right amount of real money can be determined by maintaining the price level index constant and by so doing the pound or the dollar as the case may be becomes a reliable measure of value.

If, as I hope, you will agree with these broad statements then surely the problem resolves itself into the most satisfactory way of putting this new money, which can be created without incurring a debt, into circulation.

When there is therefore sufficient purchasing power — that is money in circulation — in a country for its full production to be maintained, then international trade can assume its true function for the exchange of goods and of services which are surplus in one country and lacking in another, and all this to the mutual advantage of both.

No longer will countries desire or should they in fact be allowed to export more than they import.

KEY POINTS OF FINANCE

The above points which I have outlined to you are, as I see it, the key points of power production and finance. They will receive, I believe, a large measure of agreement but there may be some who will think that such ideals may be achieved by differing techniques. No doubt this is so, but after all a technique is merely a means to an end; apart from the objective to be achieved it is neither good nor bad.

Many solutions have been offered to this problem generally with a heavy costing of sugar. I would class the "World Bank" plan as one of those. Such a plan at a first glance might appear generous, in that richly endowed countries would pay sums into a central pool for the benefit of all, but as the control would be vested in the larger shareholders it meant in fact that an international body would have the power to issue or withhold the credit of any country —in other words it would make her or ruin her.

We are certainly not fighting the violent aggressions of Hitler to place ourselves under a far worse and less tangible form of oppression. We wish to be inspired by better ideals than this.

Surely those of today, of Mutual Aid for example, can be carried outside the state of war into that of peace.

The problem is to equate purchasing power with production, and not as before, production with a limited purchasing power, by a policy of destruction and the morale-destroying dole. The state must spend into existence new money created not as a debt to the banks on which interest is payable, but interest free money created by the banks as agents for the government for which they receive payment for the services rendered in fair measure instead of interest payments in perpetuity. The state should ask itself "Have we the men and the materials". If the answer is "Yes", the money can be forthcoming.

THOSE IN DOUBT

To those in doubt, take a look at what has been done in Russia and in Germany. We can improve on such methods and balance production with adequate purchasing power. We can and must do these things, otherwise the civilization that we are aiming to advance must receive a catastrophic set-back by the violent outbursts of civil strife that will result from an aim to perpetuate out-dated and out-moded systems.

We should do well to bear in mind the words of Whitehead:

'A race preserves its vigor so long as it harbors a real contrast between what has been and what may be: and as long as it is nerved by this vigor to adventure beyond the safeties of the past, without such a spirit of adventure, civilization is in full decay.'

Economic and monetary reform requires careful study. Some who press for reform, without doubt so vitally needed, are inclined to think that a nation can do what it wants internally regardless of the international monetary system. This view is quite mistaken.

For example: Were a country to pursue after the war an expansionist policy of full employment, retained imports will without doubt increase. Unless a system is devised under which such imports carry an order for an export of that country's goods and services and nothing else, difficulties will very soon arise.

Under the Morgenthau-Keynes or the gold standard those increased imports would not of necessity carry an order for an export of goods and of services. They might, on the contrary, carry an order for the sale of the country's currency on the foreign exchange rate, or the currency acquired through the sale of these additional goods to the country might be used to purchase that country's fixed assets.

BEYOND MEANS

Let either of these two things happen, the country would be told immediately that she was living beyond her means; that she was very poor and what was needed was a vigorous deflation.

Such would cause unemployment and give rise to many bankruptcies just as it did before under similar circumstances. By having a large number of people unemployed the demand for retained imports would decrease and the pressure to export would be increased, through the destruction of internal purchasing power.

The technique recommended in a small booklet published in Britain and entitled 'A Twentieth Century Economic System' recommends that the nations which have sent the country concerned large imports could only get their payment if they too took larger imports. They too would be encouraged to pursue an expansionist policy so as to enable their people to absorb more imports.

HOLD TITLE DEEDS

A country which supplies capital equipment on loan to another country may well claim to hold the title deeds of different corporations until the capital equipment supplied has been paid for in full, but that is quite a different matter. It may be wise and prudent for a country to incur foreign debt for the purpose of acquiring capital equipment for which it cannot pay in full out of its current exports. By the acquisition of such capital equipment its productivity may be increased so that the capital and interest may be repaid over a number of years.

There should be an agreement which prevents the creditor country which refuses to buy another nation's goods using the money to buy the title deeds to its fixed assets. A nation which allows a foreign country to buy its land, its industries, and its other fixed assets in return for imports of consumption goods, has in fact sold its birthright for a mess of potage.

The foreign country which imposes its tempo of life and scale of values and being the owner of all the fixed assets will in practice, if not in theory, control its politics. So long as through the operation of the financial and economic system one nation can in this way buy up and own another it is evident that as much fear can be generated by this form of aggression as by the danger of physical invasion.

It will in fact generate greater fear because the danger is more insidious and more difficult to resist, although the ultimate outcome may be no less disastrous to any nation wishing to preserve its freedom and chosen way of life.

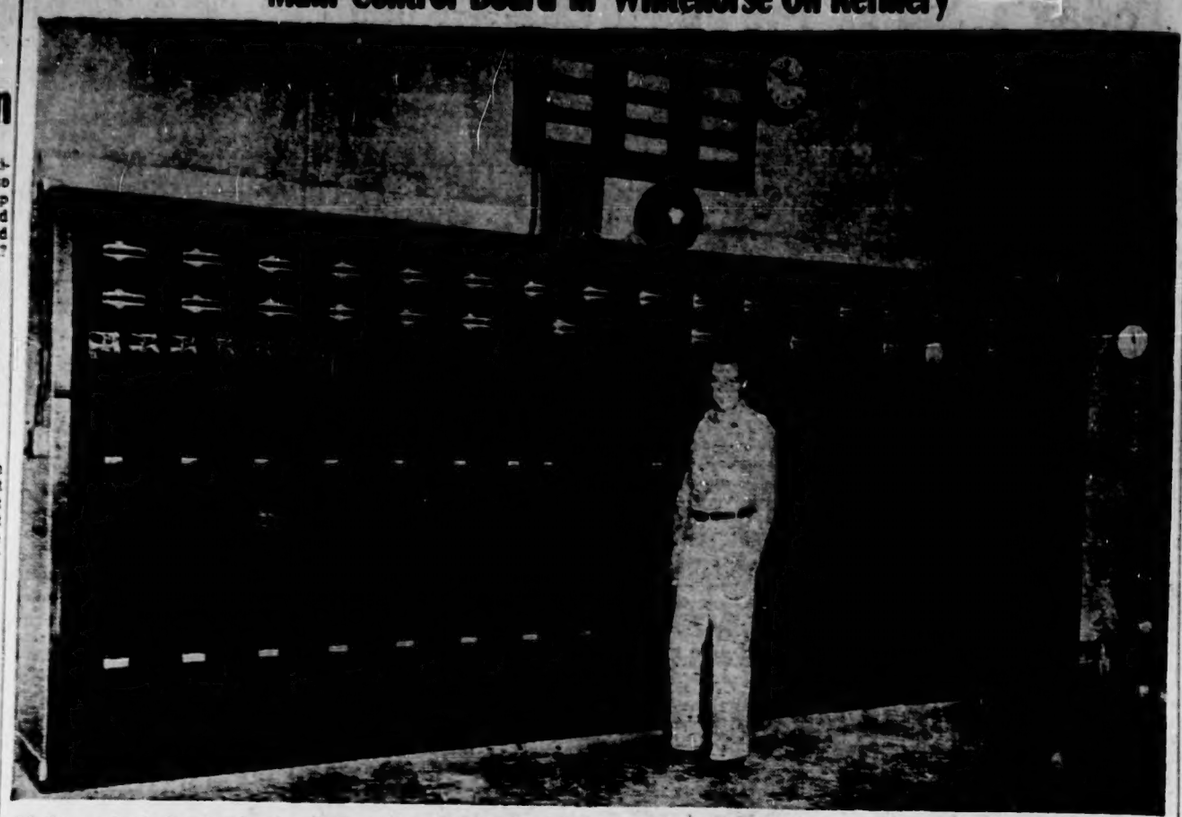

Sir Richard Gowland Hopkins known to the world as the discoverer of vitamins, said recently, 'I confess that I see more present danger in the case of money versus man, than danger, present or future, in that of machine versus man.'

These observations from the world's leading biochemist are profound and worthy of our closest attention. They point the lesson economic reform.

SHOWN BY HISTORY

History has shown convincingly how disastrous are the consequences where institutions, financial or other, blindly refuse to adapt themselves to changing conditions, and stand in the way of irrestible forces. The British peoples in their different kingdoms in the Empire over the world comprise one third of its inhabitants. They have a great duty and opportunity to point the way and establish a new financial technique which by example can lead the world into fields of prosperity as yet unvisited where we may enjoy the fruit of the earth in peace.

Main Control Board in Whitehorse Oil Refinery

Modern science has made of refining oil a matter of great precision control. Above is the nerve centre of a modern refinery. It is the main control board at the Canol refinery in Whitehorse where the miracle takes place of changing crude oil, pumped 600 miles from Norman Wells, to powerful high octane gasoline to supply planes fighting in the northwestern Pacific war zone. In front of the control board is J. A. Blaine, chief turbine operator, with the Standard Oil Co. Ltd., of Alaska, operators of the refinery and pipeline. Mr. Blaine is from Boston, Mass.

Air Power

Postwar Military Aviation

—By Maj. A. P. de Seversky—

Spokesmen for the Army and Navy air forces, Under Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson and Under Secretary of Navy for Air, Artemus L. Gates, have just testified before a subcommittee of the Senate Military Affairs Committee on the problems of postwar military aviation. Unfortunately their testimony has not received the public and press attention that it merits.

The general impression conveyed by reports was that the Army and Navy were simply asking for big peace-time air forces—that they want a lot of airplanes and the maintenance of extensive aviation manufacturing capacity. While they did ask for these things, they made assertions of basic historical importance which somehow got lost in the shuffle.

de Seversky

"This country," Mr. Patterson declared, "will not again be given such a period of grace between the start of war and the necessity of full-scale military effort as was provided by France, England and Russia in the present war."

Protection for our war plants by georgraphical isolation, he added, cannot be taken for granted in the future, because of "the almost certain development of heavy bombers capable of reaching any objective in this country from overseas bases."

These statements really represent two faces of the same reality. The implication is that even if other countries do grapple with the enemy in the next war before we do, they can no longer serve as physical barriers. The enemy's long-range air power will be able to go over their heads to strike at the United States. In other words, we are likely to be attacked from the skies the moment war starts, regardless of how many allies stand between us and the attacker.

To airmen it is gratifying that at long last our War Department officially and formally acknowledges the fact that bombers capable of reaching any target in the United States from overseas are a fact. As far as we are concerned, that could have been done five years ago—only the timidity and conservatism of military minds in all countries stopped it. Instead of being "weapons of tomorrow," these long-rang bombers could have been weapons of today, bombing relentlessly the Japanese homeland lirectly from Alaska, India and Australia.

After the successful flight of the Douglas B-19, which was half again as large as the B-29 Superfortress, the American aviation industry was keen to go ahead and build bigger and more powerful planes. Instead, it was ordered by the powers-that-be to make smaller planes than those technically possible and feasible.

The strategy of air power calls for direct attack on the enemy's means of waging war. But because military leaders did not accept that strategy, they prescribed airplanes which were a step backward from the Douglas B-19 instead of a step forward.

Specifically they ordered the B-29 which, by the time it was built and put into action, was so obviously inadequate for the real strategic tasks that War Department leaders necessarily look beyond it to larger types already under construction. It has become evident to many of them, as it was evident to air power advocates years ago, that the present complicated Rube Goldberg procedure in China, whereby we must carry gasoline in thimblefuls across mountains to prepare for B-29 sporadic raids, represents a tragic waste of the air-power potential.

DESIGNS AVAILABLE

In February, 1942, Glenn L. Martin, head of the firm carrying his name, declared that he could build 250,000-pound flying ships, capable of carrying 80 tons of bombs or cargo to Europe at a speed of 300 miles an hour whenever there was a demand for it. The reference to the "demand for it" was apparently his way of saying: "As soon as our military leadership recognizes the need." The implication was clearly that designs for much larger and more effective planes had been available in 1941, when the decision to build to B-29 was made.

Nor was Mr. Martin alone. Major Stanley, chief test pilot of the Materiel Command, predicted in September of 1941 that the United States would soon have bombers capable of carrying 50 one-ton bombs half way around the world. Tom Girdler, speaking for Consolidated Aircraft, told the Chamber of Commerce in New York that his firm was prepared to build a bomber that could make non-stop trips to Europe and return.

TOO SET IN WAYS

The point is that aeronautical engineering was all set to produce truly big airplanes, capable of direct action against the enemy's homeland without any necessity of shedding blood in conquering intermediary bases. But, because military minds were completely unfamiliar with aeronautical facts, the industry found them too scared or too set in their ways to use the new possibility. It is significant that even the belated recognition of the possibility comes from a civilian, Mr. Patterson. Not being obsessed with traditional doctrines, the civilian usually is less firmly stuck in the swamps of habit and Orthodoxy than the professional military man.

Only a few years ago Mr. Patterson was prominent among those who refused to recognize the strategic role of air power. His testimony before the Senate subcommittee is proof that he has grown greatly and that he has the moral courage to reverse himself in the interests of national security.

Scribes "Find Out" About Buzz-Bombs

LONDON, July 25.—(AP)—Two Associated Press war correspondents in London have found out how it feels to be uncomfortably close to an exploding robot bomb. Judson O'Quinn and W. W. Hercher, who shared a London apartment, heard the buzz-bomb roar over their roof one night and strike an adjoining building. They hit the floor, and lay there under a rain of splintered glass and plaster. The bomb killed two persons and injured several.

Five Men From Edmonton Mentioned in Dispatches

Five Edmonton men are included in a group of ten Albertans who have been mentioned in dispatches, it was announced from Ottawa today. The total list of those mentioned, issued by the minister of national defence, Col. the Hon. J. L. Ralston, included the names of 100 officers and men of the Canadian Army overseas.

The Edmonton men are Capt. James Gordon Anderson; Capt. Lloyd David Publicover; CSM. Harold Wellington Lewis; CQMS. Maxwell Rudyk, and Corporal Edward Emrys James.

Men from other Alberta points are Lt.-Col. Herbert Pease, O.B.E., R.C.A.S.C., Calgary; Acting Major, Charles Humber, Canadian Armored Corps, Red Deer; Capt. Earl Clemis, R.C.A., Lethbridge; Lt. Campbell Munro, Canadian Onfantry Corps, Calgary, (posthumous); Trooper Charles Clark; Canadian Armored Corps, Calgary.

FORMER ENGINEER

Capt. Anderson, whose wife and two children live in the Whitmore Apts., was a chemical engineer in Edmonton. Prior to the war he served with the R.C.A.S.C., N.P.A.M., and was appointed to the rank of lieutenant with the Canadian (Active) Army, January 1941. He went overseas in June the same year and was promoted to the rank of captain in March, 1942.

Capt. Publicover, a member of the Royal Canadian Engineers, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Publicover, 9817 93 avenue. He was born and educated in Edmonton and was graduated as an engineer from the University of Alberta in 1938.

Prior to the war he was employed as an engineer at Black Diamond, Alberta. He enlisted in Calgary in August, 1940 as a lieutenant and went overseas in December of the same year.

He took part in the Sicilian and Italian campaigns and for the past seven or eight months has been attached to headquarters of the R.C.E. in Italy.

ENLISTED IN 1939

CSM. Harold Lewis, Royal Canadian Engineers, is the son of Mrs. Mable Lewis, 4406 5th avenue west Vancouver, B.C. He was employed as a bookkeeper at Edmonton when war broke out and enlisted as a sapper in September, 1939, proceeding overseas in June of the following year.

CQMS Maxwell Rudyk of the Canadian Infantry Corps attended the Technical high school in Edmonton. He enlisted as a private in May, 1940, and went overseas in August the same year. His wife and son Dennis, reside at 9314 104 avenue.

He is a member of The Loyal Edmonton Regiment and has received four wounds during the present fighting in Italy. He took part in the Sicilian campaign and the landings in Italy. In December last year he was wounded at Ortona but later returned to action.

Since then he has three other flesh wounds but has stayed with the regiment. Two brothers are also in the services, PO Carl, R.C.A.F., who is a prisoner of war in Germany and LAC. Alex a member of R.C.A.F. ground crew personnel in Canada. His father, Michael Rudyk lives at 10266 92 street.

BORN IN WALES

Cpl. James, Royal Canadian Army Service Corps was born in Wales. He came to Canada and was a truck driver in Edmonton when he enlisted on January 24, 1941. He proceeded overseas to an Army Tank Brigade Company in June 1941, and took part in the invasion of Italy last year. His wife and four children live at 9327 106A avenue.

Citations for the mentions in despatches were not included in the release from Ottawa.

Two Children Are Injured In Accidents

Two Edmonton children, three and four years old respectively, were rushed to the Royal Alexandra hospital Monday, after being injured in traffic accidents.

One of the children, 4-year-old Mary Lakusta of 12224 75 street was in an unconscious condition when admitted shortly after 3:30 p.m., while 3-year-old John Earl Walker of 11203 123 street was said to have suffered head injuries and lacerations to his face and knees, which were not serious.

The little girl was said by police to have been knocked down at 122 avenue and Fort road by an auto operated by Oswald Mohr, Fort Saskatchewan. She was unconscious upon arrival at the hospital. She regained consciousness about 10 p.m., hospital authorities added.

CHILDREN IN ROAD

The driver reportedly stated that he saw two children in the road, and added that the girl had suddenly broken away from the little boy whose hand she had been holding, and ran in front of the auto. Although he swerved sharply to one side, the right front fender struck the girl and knocked her to the pavement. She was unconscious when he picked her up and rushed her to hospital.

INJURED BY CAR

John Walker was struck and injured by an auto driven by Douglas E. Sands, 11143 122 street, according to officers, at the intersection of 123 street and 112 avenue shortly before 7 p.m.

While said to be not seriously hurt, the boy was detained in hospital overnight.

Sale Will Assist Flood Area Victims

Officials of the Flood Victims Campaign Fund Co-Operative, Tuesday, were making last-minute preparations for the auction sale at 2 p.m. Wednesday in aid of the fund.

The sale will be at the Edmonton Exhibition grounds and two city auctioneers, Don Ball and Clyde Smith, will donate their services.

Undulant Fever Case Reported: Is in Hospital

First case of undulant fever reported in Edmonton for many years came to the attention of the city health department at the end of last week, according to a report filed Tuesday with the city commissioners by Dr. G. M. Little, medical officer of health.

The victim of the disease is a 63-year-old resident of Calder, and it is suspected that he contracted the fever through drinking raw milk supplied by a producer-distributor operating close to Edmonton, and selling milk within the city limits. Test of the animals in the producer's herd is being made.

The stricken man is in the University hospital under treatment. It is understood that he first felt ill about the middle of May, but it was not until last week that the cause of his illness was determined.

SHARP DECLINE

The incidence of other communicable disease cases in the city showed a sharp decline during the week ended July 24, declining from 69 the week previous to 48 for the week under review.

There was a decrease of eight in the number of scarlet fever cases reported, and of 22 in chickenpox cases. Mumps cases increased by seven, and three cases of whooping cough were reported this week. There were no cases of this disease the week previous.

Th following is a tabulation of the cases reported:

Damage Actions In Supreme Court

Two supreme court actions seeking damages for injuries received in street accidents in Edmonton were started Tuesday. Total damages claimed in the two actions amount to approximately $12,500.

Damages amounting to $1,939.10 are sought in a statement of claim filed by the law firm of Lymburn, Reid and Cobbledick on behalf of Mrs. Viola Slocombe, Edmonton, with the City of Edmonton named as defendant.

The action arose out of an accident at the Jasper avenue and 102 street intersection on Feb. 1, 1944, in which Mrs. Slocombe received injuries when struck by a street car as she was crossing the avenue.

She received injuries to her right thigh, contused wounds on the head, and concussion of the brain. Her claim is for loss of time, damage to clothing and general damages of $1,500. The special damages claimed amount to $439.10.

Through the law firm of Wood, Buchanan, Macdonald and Campbell, John E. Olson, Edmonton, is seeking $11,349 special and general damages from Albert Chrelien, Edmonton district resident, for injuries received when struck by an automobile operated by the defendant.

The accident occurred at the intersection of 116 avenue and 97 street on Sept. 20, 1943. The plaintiff suffered a smashed ankle, broken arm, dislocated hip and shoulder, concussion of the brain and shock.

Candidates File Nomination Papers

Two more Labor-Progressive candidates have filed nomination papers in Edmonton, according to H. H. Crawford, city returning officer.

Latest to file and deposit the statutory $100 fee were Mrs. Grace V. Murdoch and Jan Lakeman, bringing to four the number of Labor-Progressive candidates to fill out city papers. William Halina and A. M. Herd both filed papers last Friday.

A total of six city candidates have now filed with Mr. Crawford. First to complete his papers was W. J. Williams, Veterans' candidate, who was followed by Elmer E. Roper, CCF provincial leader. Mr. Roper also filed last Friday.

3 Youths Flee: Leave Gas Behind

Three youths fled along the lane at the rear of the Royal Bank building, 105 street and Jasper avenue, leaving behind a five-gallon can of gasoline which they had siphoned out of a truck, after being surprised by George King, a night patrolman, about 10:30 p.m. Monday, according to city police.

The vehicle, owned by Expert Dyers and Cleaners, had been parked at the rear of the bank and was not clearly visible to passers-by on the street.

Officers found that the can had been filled with fuel taken from the truck. It was poured back in the gas tank and the container destroyed. A brief description of the trio was given to police.

Shrine Pilgrimage On Anniversary

To be observed during the annual pilgrimmage to the sacred shrine at the lake, will be the centennial anniversary of the founding of the Roman Catholic mission at Lac Ste. Anne by Father Thiebault, Wednesday and Thursday.

On Wednesday, Indians will make the pilgrimage, and Thursday the white people will go to the shrine. High mass was set for 10:30 a.m. each day. Blessing of the sick, and confession, will be heard each afternoon.

Attendance of the Indians from surrounding districts is expected to be less than former years, because the highway traffic board has not granted permission for the use of trucks to transport the Indians to Lac Ste. Anne.

The Inquiring Reporter

THE QUESTION

If you had the job of arranging the proposed park-site around the Macdonald hotel, how would you go about it?

THE ANSWERS

GEORGE JOHNSON, clerk: If I were landscaping the park site, I would set out to build up from the bottom, and fill in from the top, until I had a series of elevations each lined with tree for shade. Where the river is concerned, I would run a concrete wall along the edge to prevent erosion by the river. I would arrange a portion of the area for car-parking, but would also arrange that autos did not traverse the whole park area.

MRS. H. L., housewife: I think the park area should go beyond the hotel block. It should be a place where people could read and relax and not be bothered by passing noisy cars. No one should be allowed to commercialize the spot by operation of a popcorn stand or hot-dog concession. The idea of turning the basement of the former Blowey-Henry building into a swimming pool has merits.

• • •

A. A. HARRIS, salesman: Looking at the hill from the other side of the river, I would say a series of crescent shaped terraces, extending from the hotel east to 95 street or beyond, would enhance the beauty of the territory concerned. Cars should be kept out of all the actual park area, but a lovely driveway could be made following the river. The terraces should be well treed and sown to lawns, perhaps with flower beds to give it a final touch.

City Officer G. E. Edwards Leaves Force

Sgt. George Wilson Edwards, City of Edmonton police officer for almost 30 years, retired from the force Tuesday, according to Chief Constable Reginald Jennings.

Born in Scotland March 26, 1888, where, for two years before coming to Canada, he served in the Fife and Forfar Yeomanry, Sgt. Edwards joined the city police as a constable when 24 years old.

Almost four years later, on Feb. 18, 1916, he resigned to go overseas on active service. He held the rank of regimental sergeant-major in the 202nd Battalion and in order to get "over the big pond," he reverted to the rank of private. He was one of 10 non-commissioned officers recommended for promotion to a commissioned rank in the Old Country. He served in France with the 31st (Alberta) Battalion.

Returning to Canada he was reinstated as a first-class constable on the police force July 22, 1919. On April 21 of the following year he was appointed patrol sergeant and drill instructor.

He was given a cash award for meritorious performance of duty Dec. 30, 1921, and for some time served as acting inspector.

With his resignation, he ends a service which had seen him a sergeant in the force for more than 24 years.

Sgt. Edwards, who resides at 10458 83 avenue, is unmarried.

RAF Officer Drowns at Sylvan

Pilot Officer Stewart, R.A.F., Penhold, lost his life by drowning in Sylvan Lake about 11 p.m. Sunday, according to R.C.M.P. The officer was one of four swimming off the pier at the lake when the tragedy occurred.

The body was recovered about an hour later, but efforts on the part of FO. J. E. Bradley, R.C.A.F., medical officer, to revive the man proved unsuccessful.

The provincial coroner was notified. An inquest is believed by police to be unnecessary.

Mr. MacLeod was a native of Lewis, Scotland.

Envelope Found in Tank Results In City Girl Receiving Letter

An English veteran who served with General Sir Bernard Montgomery's famed "desert rats" of the immortal Eighth Army, Driver J. R. White of the Royal Armored Corps, is now on the favored correspondence list of pretty Peggy Campbell of 11237 81 street, all through a coincidence of war in battle swept Italy.

Driver White found Miss Campbell's address in a tank that had been damaged on the battlefield and decided to write Peggy.

Miss Campbell is impressed with the polite, newsy letter from the young English soldier and has already replied to him.

She thinks the British soldier must have found an envelope or letter written by her to an Edmonton soldier in the tank corps.

Driver White writes that he has become acquainted with many Canadians since serving in Italy and he considers the Canuck fighting man simply tops in every respect.

Like many other persons from the British Isles, White has had his eyes opened about Canada, which he had previously thought was made up of just ranchers and cowboys. He plans to visit Canada after the war.

General Montgomery is highly praised and termed "a great leader" by Driver White.

Miss Campbell belongs to a family closely identified with the Canadian Army. Her father, Pte. Peter Campbell, is stationed with the RCASC at Red Deer, while her brother, Pte. Henry Campbell, recently returned from overseas where he served with the Seaforth Highlanders of Canada.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

Time and Absence Heal And Renew Happiness

Sailor Reviving Interest in Old Friend Likely to Favor Wife After Meditation At Sea

DEAR MISS DIX: I have been married six years and until recently my husband, who is in the Navy, seemed happy and contented, but lately he has decided he is in love with a girl he knew before he did me, and she insists upon his getting a divorce and marrying her. He doesn't want to do this.

All three of us involved in this triangle are 30 years of age. What should I do?

A BROKEN-HEARTED WIFE.

ANSWER: Tell your husband that you want him to be happy and that you do not intend to be a dog in the manger and that if after he returns from the war he feels that he loves this other woman better than he does you, that you will steal quietly out of the picture, but that you are not going to do it now. Tell him he will have to wait to choose between you and the Other Woman until he has had plenty of time to think the matter over and search his heart.

You say your husband is 30 years old. He is acting like a school boy, not knowing his own mind. You will be doing him a great favor by making him wait for a divorce, instead of handing him out one because a girl is persuading him that he wants her instead of you.

Perhaps in the long nights at sea, when he is alone with his own soul, he will grow up and get to be adult enough to at least know what he wants.

KEEP HOME

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband will soon go into the army and I will have to get a job. That's all right. Neither of us wish to shirk our duty. But my parents and friends insist that I give up my lovely, comfortable apartment, store or sell my furniture, and go to live with either his family, or my family, or my sister.

I can't see it. I want to stay in my own place. I feel that I will miss my husband less there than anywhere else, and that it will be a comfort to him to know that his home is intact and waiting for him. What shall I do?

MARG.

ANSWER: I would say keep your own apartment. Stay in your own house with your own things. Don't go to live with your family or your husband's family. The one means freedom and self-expression, having things the way you want them, doing the things you want to do. The other means that you are in bondage to the whims, caprices, tastes and habits of somebody else, and that you will have to give an account of your every move.

If you go back to live with your mother, she will treat you as if you were still 5 years old, and not bright at that. If you go to live with your husband's people, they will consider you an unwanted guest who has been wished upon them, and you will have just about as much liberty as a dog on a leash.

And a final word of warning. Never go to board with anyone who tells you they will treat you as a member of the family. They do. They never consider your taste, or your comfort, or your habits. They expect you to eat what they eat and do as they do, and like it.

NOT FOOLISH

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: Is it foolish for a man of 45 to still crave kisses? All my life I have been starved for kisses, but my wife doesn't get any kick out of them and tells me to be my age. Call kisses mushy or anything you like, but I think they are necessary for a happy married life. LOVING HUSBAND.

ANSWER: Well, for goodness sake, if you are a kissing bug, why didn't you find out before marriage your girl's views on osculation, and whether she was a petter or a non-petter? Seems as if you might have noticed whether she turned her lips or the back of her ear to you when you kissed her.

Anyway, I don't think it is silly for a man of 45 to crave kisses from his wife. I think it is perfectly wonderful!

It is totally inaccurate to speak or think of Creoles as people of mixed blood. The word itself has no connotation of color in it, and was originally used to denote any person born in the West Indies of Spanish parents, as distinguished from Spanish immigrants born in Spain. It is now used to refer to descendants of all non-aboriginal races in the West Indies. In the United States, the word Creole is used to indicate the French-speaking native portion of the white race in Louisiana — whether actually French or Spanish blood. In Mexico Creoles are whites of pure Spanish extraction. French Canadians are never called Creoles, and neither are the pure Spanish or Portuguese people of South America. People of mixed blood are called "Mulattoes," not Creoles.

DEPENDABLE ANTISEPTIC AND DISINFECTANT

Every little while some one asks how to disinfect or sterilize a clinical thermometer.

Except in cases where the physician instructs you to take the temperature I believe a clinical thermometer has no place in a well regulated household, and so far as I have observed the use of one except under order of the physician serves only to give you something to worry about.

The best way to disinfect a clinical thermometer so that it will be safe for anyone to use is, in my opinion, simple washing with good, hot, soapy water.

Best way to disinfect or sterilize a nedle, pin, knife-point or other instrument you may use to dig out a sliver or open a blister or a pimple is by boiling it for five minutes. Or hold it in gas or alcohol flame for a second or two. Or if these means are inconvenient, just plunge it into a cake of wet soap and go ahead with the surgery.

Whenever you want to sterilize cloths for any purpose, even for use in or about the field of an operation, ordinary laundering and ironing will serve the purpose as well as the most imposing steam pressure apparatus. A suitable sterile compress or pad to apply to a wound either for pressur to stop bleeding or as a protective dressing, is a freshly laundered and ironed handkerchief or any similar piece of cloth. When we speak of a sterile surface we mean that the surface is free from disease-causing germs.

It is practically impossible to sterilize the skin of the hands or the skin of the area of an operation. The technique followed by surgeons is thorough hand scrubbing with plain soap and water and then the wearing of rubber gloves—the rubber glove surface can be sterilized by heat. The skin of the operation area is scrubbed with plain soap and water, dried, and painted once only with tincture of iodine.

That brings us face to face with a question which I, for one, would prefer to evade a little longer. But if you insist I suppose I must make up my mind about it. Please let me have a few more days to mull it over and then I'll give my opinion regarding the use of iodine as a first aid disinfectant or antiseptic.

DUMB-BELLS

War Kitchen

By GAYNOR MADDOX

Frankfurts are a good warm weather labor saver. They are already cooked when you buy them, and need only be heated through. They are made from boneless beef and fresh pork, blended with spices. Identified brands are made according to recipe, and can be counted on for uniform taste.

FRANKFURT MACARONI SALAD (Serves 6)

Mix 3 cups of cooked elbow macaroni with 3 tablespoons of French dressing. Let stand for 10 minutes. Combine with ½ cup diced celery, ½ cup diced cucumber, 2 tablespoons minced onion, 1 teaspoon salt and enough salad dressing or mayonnaise to moisten. Add 3 frankfurts, sliced crosswise, and 2 diced hard-cooked eggs. Cut green peppers into halves, scoop out and stuff with salad. Chill. Serve on lettuce nests with sliced vegetable.

STUFFED "FRANKS" (Serves 4)

Slit 8 frankfurts lengthwise, not cutting clear through. Fill with a bread dressing, made by mixing 1 cup soft bread crumbs and 1 tablespoon diced onion, ¼ cup diced celery, ½ teaspoon salt and enough water to moisten. Wrap each stuffed frankfurt with a strip of bacon, spiral fashion, fastening with a toothpick. Broil in a hot oven about 15 minutes, turning to brown bacon.

MUSTARD SAUCE (Yield: 1 cup)

Brown 3 tablespoons of flour in a skillet, mix with 2 tablespoons of fat. Add 1 cup of soup stock or bouillon. Cook until thick. Remove from heat, add ½ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons prepared mustard, and 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce.

HOLD EVERYTHING

The Masters pair and Masters team-of-four championships, held in the national tournament at the Hotel Astor in New York, are known as the world championship pair and team events.

Generally speaking, bidding and making a grand slam will get you better than average; but practically every pair in last year's tournament bid and made a grand slam on today's hand. The bidding varied with the players involved. The play, although simple, is sometimes bungled on hands of this type. The opening heart lead was won by South with the King and a low trump led to the queen. When the jack dropped, declarer realized that he had to guard against four spades in one hand and four clubs in the other. He led a low spade from dummy, then picked up the rest of the trumps. He led his club to dummy's ace, ruffed a low club, entered dummy with the ace of hearts, and discarded his losers on the club suit.

Federal Vote Not Expected At Early Date

By FRANK FLAHERTY

OTTAWA, July 25—(CP)—Members of parliament, spurred by continuing good war news and three provincial election campaigns, have become election-conscious these days.

When Prime Minister Mackenzie King yesterday casually mentioned he had considered an adjournment of parliament at the end of this month in order that members might come back in October to complete the business of the session, his hearers started to think of the remark in terms of election prospects.

NO INDICATION OF END

There is no indication when the present session will end, but it is known that opposition members as well as the government, are shooting for adjournment Aug. 5.

It was generally assumed that a Dominion general election would come either late this year or next spring or early summer. An adjournment of parliament would not affect the choice of these two dates or indicate a decision to postpone it until next year.

On the basis of Mr. King's statements on other occasions two things stand out: First, he is opposed to extending the term of parliament beyond its constitutional five-year term; second, he does not want an election before the end of the war. That means if the war does not end before the five-year term runs out sometime late in 1945, he would have to consider what should be done.

It was believed Liberal party strategists desire a considerable period of preparation for the election and for that reason few members expect an early appeal to the people.

IMPORTANT MEASURES

Two of the important measures still awaiting disposal by the house can be expected to figure in the election campaign. They are family allowances and floor prices for farm products.

If parliament adjourned without disposing of these the government would still be free to call an election at any time. Should the war in Europe end the election might be called before parliament met again.

Minute Make-Ups

In the office or at home it is important to be well groomed. Those who wear glasses sometimes forget to clean them often enough. Get in the habit of keeping your glasses bright and shining by cleaning them with good quality witch hazel. You can also use it to clean your face freshen up your hair and cool off hot, perspiring hands.

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Appetites wane when the temperature soars and the expectation that baby will down his full allotment of vegetables, cereals and milk each day, is doomed to disappointment.

The runabout, who can be very vehement about refusing food, but more clever at satisfying his appetite with between-meal lunches, needs just as much supervision as the baby, to be sure that when he does eat it is the right food for his needs, not cookies, candy and soft drinks.

All children drink lots of water in hot weather, which is a sensible habit. They lose lots of water when they perspire and so they should be encouraged to drink by being offered small glasses of water often. If the baby is on the bottle, then half fill his bottle with cool water and give this between any one of the regular meals.

Sweet, cool orange juice is welcome on hot days and children can seldom drink too much of it. It's better to give them fruitades made of lemon or lime or orange, than to open a bottle of soft drink.

It is pretty certain that if the child is very hot when he comes to the table that food will not appeal to him. So bring the child in before a meal, give him a swift, cool sponge bath and let him rest for fifteen or twenty minutes before it is time to eat. This will put him in a mood to enjoy and to digest his food.

Picnic lunches are guaranteed to perk up the appetites of the most finicky child. The fun of taking food out of a basket or box, the novelty of eating in the shade of a tree with two or three companions, stimulates the appetite. It's a good practice at the noon meal, saving dishes, offering mother an opportunity to eat in peace and quiet and inspiring a better consumption of good food.

The meal may be simple, with any type of sandwich, a whole tomato or piece of fruit, a thermos bottle filled with very cold milk and a handful of cookies. Use paper plates, napkins and cups and the work of the noon meal is cut to the minimum.

There are certain foods, chiefly sugars and starches and fats, which are high in caloric value and therefore produce heat and energy. Reduce those in hot weather and stress rather the low caloric vegetables, fruits and skimmed milk. Everyone will be the better for it.

Our leaflet, "Common Summer Annoyances" suggests helps for bites, prickly heat, etc. You may have the leaflet by sending your request for it with a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Myrtle Mayer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

Week of Action

Pursuit of German Forces Turns Into Bitter Advance

By DOUG HOW

WITH THE CANADIAN CORPS IN ITALY, July 25.—(CP)—In the farmlands west of Lake Trasimeno, an eastern Canadian armored unit, the Three Rivers tank regiment rounded out its first year of action in a pursuit that turned into a bitter advance.

It was a week of action that will be remembered as one of its heaviest by a regiment that has fought in Sicily, at Termoli, in the Moro valley, the Gustav and Hitler lines and in the rapid chase that developed after.

The week's action reached its height outside Casamaggiore June 20 when German tanks and guns, from dominating positions on a slope, reduced a squadron under Maj. F. W. Johnson, Three Rivers, Que.

CREPT TO HOUSE

Maj. Johnson's tank was holed June 20 and he bailed out with his crew. Under sniping and small-arms fire they crept to a house that was to shelter them for six hours.

When the shelling eased, Johnson, and the party, including Cpl. Maxie Maximick, Winnipeg, crawled into the wheat fields and worked their way back more than a mile to an infantry battalion headquarters.

When they returned to their unit they found themselves officially reported missing.

L-Cpl. Howard McClelland of Henryburg, Que., was credited with the two probable anti-tank guns to fall to his squadron, but he was best remembered for his cool direction under fire in getting a tank back into action, manoeuvring it into position guarding a flank and using its guns to help beat off a counter-attack.

Tanks under Lieut. Alfrew Farrow, Vancouver, and Capt. Ian Grant, Victoria, acting as squadron commander, were in on the same action.

Government Orders Study Of International Cartels

By FRANK FLAHERTY

OTTAWA, July 25.—(CP)—With a view to obtaining information on which to base policy and legislation the government has ordered a study made of international cartels and patent arrangements and their possible effect on employment, domestic and foreign trade, Labor Minister Mitchell said yesterday in the Commons.

The study is being made under the direction of Fred W. McGregor, commissioner under the combines investigation act, with the assistance of two government officials, a lawyer and an economist.

Mr. Mitchell made the announcement when questioned during discussion of labor estimates about post-war plans for dealing with combines and cartels.

APPROVE ESTIMATES

The Commons approved estimates for the Royal Canadian Mounted police before passing on to labor department appropriations and passed an interim supply bill to permit payment of government operating costs pending final approval of all the estimates. That bill also went through the Senate and received royal asset along with other measures ready for the representative of the crown.

Finance Minister Ilsley introduced two bills based on the budget resolutions at the opening of the sitting, amendments to the special war revenue act and the war exchange conservation act. Later in the day he brought in amendments to the customs tariff and the succession duty act.

The house decided to sit on Saturdays after Prime Minister Mackenzie King expressed the hope only one Saturday sitting would be necessary before the end of the session.

Justice Minister St. Laurent introduced a bill to authorize judges to allocate part of their pension to their wives in order to provide incomes for them after their own deaths.

LABOR ESTIMATES

Discussion of labor department estimates brought up the current dispute at the Halifax shipyards with Clarence Gillis (CCF-Cape Breton South) declaring the situation should not have been allowed ot develop.

Mr. Gillis said there was a threat of a walkout of 3,000 men on an essential war job.

The company, he said, refused to accept the recommendations of a board of conciliation and in effect defied the government and its agencies.

At Halifax shipyards there would be an agreement now if the employer would accept a closed shop and a check-off. Agreement had been reached on all other points.

NO COMPULSION

In establishing the right to join a trade union Canada had gone further than any other United Nation, said Mr. Mitchell. There was only one other democratic country, New Zealand, which made a closed shop compulsory. There people were required by law to join trade unions. Right or wrong the Canadian people were not ready for that.

Mr. Gillis said the Halifax shipyard workers were not seeking a closed shop in the ordinary sense of the word. It did not mean everyone had to belong to the union in order to be employed.

All labor department civil estimates were approved as well as most of the trade and commerce department estimates.

Man Will Face Murder Charge After 19 Years

WINNIPEG, July 25.—(CP)—Sought by police for 19 years, Alexander Danilhik, 55, wanted in Detroit for murder and armed robbery, was arrested by Royal Canadian Mounted Police here during the week-end, it was announced yesterday.

He is charged with being a principal in the murder of Andrew Kacznarek in Detroit Nov. 1, 1925. Police said three other men were implicated in the crime.

Kacznarek was robbed of a bank book and then killed. His body, weighted with cement, was thrown in the Rouze river at Detroit. With the bank book and a forged order, the men obtained $11,577 from Kacznarek's account in the People's State Bank.

HELD ON WARRANT

Danilhik was arrested here by Inspector M. F. E. Anthony, RCMP, on a warrant issued under the Extradition Act. He appeared in court yesterday and was remanded pending extradition proceedings.

A routine finger print check at the plant of the Dominion Industries Limited in Transcona, near here, led to his arrest. The finger print card was sent to the identification bureau at Ottawa where it was disclosed he was wanted by Detroit police.

Danilhik, who lived in a north end Winnipeg rooming house, where he was arrested, had been working at the plant for only three weeks.

Police said he had a previous Canadian record, and that he had been arrested in Hamilton, Ont., in 1920 on a charge of attempted theft.

Troops Praise Cool Courage Of V.C. Winner

OTTAWA, July 25—(CP)—Men of Maj. John (Jack) Foster Mahony's company were unanimous in their praise of the action which resulted in his being awarded the Victoria Cross—Canada's fifth V.C. of the present war.

(Maj. Mahony, 33, of New Westminster, B.C., and an officer of the Westminster Regiment (motor), was awarded the V.C. after continuing successful direction of the holding of an Italian bridgehead though he had been wounded three times. His award—90th award of the V.C. to empire servicemen in this war—was announced in the House of Commons July 13 by Defence Minister Ralston.)

RIGHT-HAND MAN

CSM William Smith of West Vancouver was Maj. Mahony's right-hand man during the action on May 24-25.

"It was 24 hours after the battle that I first saw him," said CSM. Smith. "He came back from the action wounded and dog-tired. He got his wounds dressed and spent the night with me, but he went right back to his company the next day. You can't keep a fellow like him down. The fellows are all feeling mighty proud of having him as their company commander and they've got good reason to be."

Pte. J. R. Highland of Vancouver saw Maj. Mahony just as he was hit. "He just got up off the ground and carried on despite what must have been a painful injury. He was still going when I saw him last, said Highland. Another soldier, Pte. C. J. Walker of Vancouver, was impressed by Maj. Mahony's coolness.

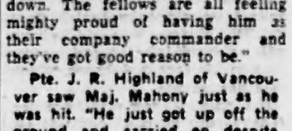

"More than once I saw him standing out in the open under fire trying to locate enemy positions while the rest of us dug in. He seemed to have a charmed life," Walker said.

RESCUED WOUNDED

Cpl. W. M. Thorarinson of Winnipeg, only signaller in the operation who did not become a casualty and who was unable to leave his communications post, watched Maj. Mahony go out twice under fire and bring helplessly wounded men in to safety.

Defence headquarters said last night that at a banquet in his honor recently Maj. Mahony was toasted by his divisional commander, Maj.-Gen. B. M. Hoffmeister, as "the man whom we respect above all others, and who stands as an example to every last officer and man of the division."

Phyllis Fitzpatrick Wed At All Saints' Cathedral

WED AT YORKTON

Mrs and Mrs. Elmer Gilchuk, Mountain Park, who were married in St. Andrew's United church in Yorkton, Sask., on May 16. The bride, who was given in marriage by the bridegroom's father, is the former Miss Fay Bergman. The attendants were Mr. and Mrs. William Markoski. They are making their home in Sudbury, Ont.

All Saints' cathedral was the scene of the wedding Saturday at high noon of Miss Phyllis Myrtle Fitzpatrick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs T. C. Fitzpatrick, Regina, Sask., and Fred A. Stenseth, son of Nels O. Stenseth, Valley View. The Rev. W. W. Buxton performed the ceremony. They were unattended.

CORSAGE OF LILIES

The bride was given in marriage by H. B. Bernstein. She wore a street-length, two-piece ensemble of turquoise blue with matching hat and white accessories. Her corsage was of lilies and a rosebud sent by air from the bride's mother in Regina.

A buffet luncheon was served after the ceremony.

A short honeymoon is being spent in Eastern Canada.

Attending the wedding were: N. O. Stenseth, Anton Stenseth, the Misses Jean and Helen Selthun, cousins of the bride.

Congratulations were received from friends in the east and the west.

Dick Memorial Ideas Given

Twenty-six persons, including representatives of 16 organizations with which the late Mrs. W. J. Dick was actively associated, attended a meeting held at the War Services Council of Northern Alberta centre, Jasper avenue, Monday evening, and a Muriel Dick Memorial fund committee of seven was set up to explore several projects suggested for establishment of a memorial to Mrs. Dick.

It was decided the committee should report to Harold L. Weir, who was elected chairman. Mrs. Florence Andrews was elected executive secretary. Mr. Weir will call a second public meeting shortly.

The seven chosen for the committee were Mrs. H. C. Newland, Dr. George Hunter, Mrs. E. C. Pardee, W. F. Empey, Robert Muir, Hugh Gourlay and Dr. Mary Hunter.

WIDE RANGE

Owing to the wide range of interests of Mrs. Dick, in young people, Girl Guide activities, the theatre, creche work, war work, books, art, music, handicrafts, several projects were suggested.

Establishment of a permanent summer camp at a lake, conducted along rules of the Girl Guide Association, and providing restful health and proper food to less fortunate children, was one suggestion.

Establishment of a scholarship or several scholarships in a system whereby the interest on the original sum could be used to determine the number of scholarships provided, was a third project advanced.

A memorial library of books containing volumes on subjects in which Mrs. Dick was interested could be placed in cities and towns in this area, where such books are not otherwise available, according to another suggestion. Each book would carry a memorial book plate.

WRITINGS ASKED

At the suggestion of Mrs. Elsie Park Gowan, friends of Mrs. Dick are asked to write down a short paragraph or sentences showing treasured characteristics. It is planned to publish the items, in legend form, for free distribution among friends and associates of Mrs. Dick. This material should be submitted to Mrs. Gowan.

COTTON BALL QUEENS

An evening dress as chintzy looking as a pinafore can be the queen of the ball, or the dance where a nickel in a slot releases the tune, if it has style and a touch of Cinderella glamor, as most cottons for formal wear have. Besides glazed chints—see it glamorized with multi-colored sequins in the dress with the snug bodice and the long full skirt modeled at the right—almost any kind of available cotton that can take good dyes, preshrinking, and finishes that keep it paper crisp are given a whirl by designers, who have taken cottons out of the kitchen and slicked them up for the dance. Although spangles as fiery as sparklers gleam on gingham, and other cottons go to parties puffed out like satin quilts, the youthfully-styled, simply detailed dress has plenty of fanciers among both the designers and the girls who wear them. One of these favorites is the chalky white pique frock, shown at the left. The ballooning-out skirt is balanced at the top with kerchief sleeves set into a streamlined bodice edged with crisp cotton eyelet lace.

Summer Lunches

In the job which we, the women of Canada, have undertaken, of seeing that our families get proper food, summer presents very special problems.

Hot weather frequently causes poor appetites. Many people don't feel they need as much food. What we must remember is that they do need just as much of the protective foods. Only maybe they should get them in lighter, more appetizing forms.

Now cured pork products are—of all meats—among the richest in nutritional values. They contain many of the essential elements that we may normally get from just these "stodgier" foods we don't fancy in hot weather.

And of all the cured pork products in tins, none leaped quicker to universal popularity than Prem. This summer there will be more Prem available, so look out for it on your dealer's shelves. Besides its extra food values, Prem is a wonderful time and labour saver because it is all ready to eat. Serve Prem often. Keep a tin or two on hand.

How to make a "Jiffy" cake

THIS CAKE is the magic answer, when you're really in a hurry. Takes only a few minutes to make the batter, and a half-hour to bake. Here's the recipe:

JIFFY CAKE
1¾ cups all purpose flour
2½ tsps. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
1 cup sugar
½ cup milk
½ cup softened shortening
1 egg
1 tsp. vanilla extract

Sift flour; measure; sift into large bowl with baking powder, salt, and sugar. Measure milk into cup; add shortening to fill. Dump milk, shortening, unbeaten egg, and flavoring into flour mixture. Beat with rotary beater 2 to 3 minutes, or until batter is smooth. Pour batter into well greased shallow square cake pan (8x8x2). Bake in moderate oven (375° F.) 30 minutes, or until done. Serve warm or cold, plain or with sauce. Serves 8.

Cup Cakes, too, require surprisingly little time to prepare (summertime suggestions: serve them split and covered with crushed fresh fruit, or with frosting, or with powdered sugar). The recipe:

CUP CAKES
1¾ cups all purpose flour
2½ tsps. baking powder
¼ tsp. salt
⅓ cup shortening
1 cup sugar
1 tsp. vanilla extract
1 egg
½ cup milk

Sift flour; measure; mix and sift flour, baking powder and salt. Cream shortening until smooth; gradually add sugar, creaming until fluffy, beat in vanilla and egg. Add flour alternately with milk, beating until smooth after each addition. Turn into greased muffin pans and bake in moderate oven (375° F.) about 25 minutes. Makes 18 cakes.

Far North Looked Bleak, Lonely To American Soldiers in 1942-3

Capt. Richard L. Neuberger will be remembered as aide to Brig.-Gen. James A. O'Connor, Commanding General of the Northwest Service Command of the U.S. Army during the period of construction of the Alaska Military Highway and other projects in the Northwest. Capt. Neuberger, a former member of the Oregon State legislature and a staff writer with the Portland Oregonian and New York Times, has also had many articles on the Northwest published in Saturday Evening Post and other leading publications. He became well known to Edmontonians during his many visits here with General O'Connor. He went to Washington after General O'Connor's transfer to other duties early last spring.—EDITOR.

By CAPT. RICHARD L. NEUBERGER

In the cold, drizzling rain the two engineer companies filed silently down the gangplank. The only sound was the thunk of heavy shoes on the slippery boards. No one spoke. A lieutenant stumbled, and his handbag fell into the water with a little splash and disappeared. He smiled a sickly, nervous smile and walked on.

The engineers had travelled 1,000 miles north of Seattle with us to build a port for the Army at Excursion Inlet; and this was Excursion Inlet.

"Excursion Inlet" — a lyrical name. We expected to find a settlement with white-board houses, flower beds and perhaps a theatre or so. Maybe there would be a school and a church; and, the engineers fervently hoped, school-teachers

NO TOWN THERE

But there was no town at all. On the shore stood a crumbling salmon cannery. Its planks were grey and rotted. Out from it jutted the barnacle-fouled dock to which we were tied. The piles of the dock sagged crazily. That was Excursion Inlet; there wasn't any more.

The northern dusk had begun to settle. The engineer companies would have to hustle to pitch their wet tents before dark. Damp bushes and dripping spruce trees guarded the shore. Mountainous cliffs towered upward, until they were lost in fog and clouds. The ship cast loose and churned slowly out to sea. The lonely figures on the dock waved a silent, melancholy farewell. A few turns of the Aleutian's screws and they faded into the mist.

This was our introduction to Alaska.

We knew now what Lt. Booser, the big Mississippi cavalryman, commanding the gun crew, had meant as we left Seattle.

He pointed dramatically to Seattle's skyline and said to no one in particular, "Take a good look at 'er, boys. You may not see 'er again for a long time. She may not look like much to you now, but they're going to be times up there when you'll pray for a glimpse of 'er, just one tiny glimpse, like a bunch of prayin' fools."

Booser turned and walked dramatically along the deck. A major looked at me and grinned woefully. We watched from the rail while Seattle became obscured in the distance. Soon only the thin spire of the Smith Tower's 42 floors was visible and then it, too, was gone. The soldiers crowding the deck filed in to lunch. The major and I buttoned the collars of our trench coats and stood outside with our thoughts.

VITAL BATTLEFRONT

Alaska in the late summer of 1942 was a vital American battlefront. The Japanese held the outermost Aleutians. Dutch Harbor had been bombed. Our North Pacific route to our Russian allies was in peril. Communications and transportation were tenuous. The Alaska Military Highway had barely been begun. No fuel reserves bolstered the Alaskan air forces. Telephone service between the United States and the endangered Alaskan outposts did not exist. Anthony J. Dimond, Alaska's veteran Delegate in Congress, had just declared:

"Alaska, to all intent and purposes, is an island. It is as cut off by the mountain and forest wilderness of the Canadian Northwest as an island like Hawaii is cut off by the ocean. Alaska can be reached by only two means— through the air and via the traditional method of the sea. But transportation to Alaska by land, the one sure way of securing this strategic Northern rampart, is now impossible. No route has yet been built."

So we were journeying to Alaska as men had journeyed since the days of Vitus Behring and Baranof and Capt. George Vancouver—by water.

The Aleutian left a foamy wake as we put the wooded heights of Vancouver Island on our portside and headed into the 1,200 mile corridor of the Inside Passage.

Dinner the first night out was heavily rimmed with homesickness. Many veal cutlets and peas went back to the kitchen untouched. When you touched a door leading to the deck, all lights in nearby rooms and companionways automatically went out. The Army was taking no chances.

I sat down in the smoking room next to a captain of coast artillery who was reading that morning's Seattle Post Intelligencer. It was the last daily paper we were to see on the day of publication for many months. "Darn," the captain said resentfully, "why couldn't I be one of those guys sitting down there at the Port? Most of them looked a hell of a lot healthier and younger than I am. I got a wife and two children." The captain rose and walked out of the room.

"Boy," observed a pink-cheeked young second lieutenant, "he's got it bad, hasn't he?" I nodded in agreement, yet it was not the only time during 19 months of Army service in the Far North that I was to hear men who were cold or lonely or homesick speak harshly of their comrades in arms back in the paradise of "the States," even though these men at home might desperately want duty in the field. Bitterness is seldom logical. Resentment overrules reason.

PLOW NORTHWARD

We plowed slowly northward. The fiords of British Columbia became steeper and wider. Dark precipices frowned downed on the steamship. We seemed to be moving through "caverns measureless to man." At Prince Rupert we got our last glimpse of a railway which connected with the main railroad system of the continent. And from the decks of the Aleutian several hundred officers and men watched wistfully as a long string of Canadian National sleeping cars rolled along the harbor's edge and turned up the Skeena River. Those cars were headed home.

VISIT KETCHIKAN

But we were headed north. Our ship stopped at Ketchikan. We looked skeptically at this Alaskan fishing community of 3,800 souls. Stuck against a wooded hillside, it appeared small and humdrum. We called it a "settlement." We did not know that the time soon would be at hand when we would consider Ketchikan a "city," and its paved streets and bus systems and stores and girls and dairy would symbolize to us the ultimate in civilization.

Ketchikan is Alaska's principal port of entry. How you regard Ketchikan depends entirely upon which direction you have come from. If you are just out of Seattle or Vancouver, it is a fishing village and nothing more. But if you have been north of the Inside Passage, up in the infinite solitudes of the Yukon and Mackenzie watersheds, Ketchikan beckons with the same fierce and compelling lure which New York and London hold for the cosmopolitanite.

We put Ketchikan behind us and churned through Alaskan waters.

In a rainstorm which swept in off Icy Straits the engineers disembarked at Excursion Inlet. Our destination was Skagway. We arrived there on a Saturday night. It was still raining. A wind with the talons of winter clawed us as we stood shivering on the deck. I stepped off the gangplank and into and ankle-deep sinkhole. On the way to solid ground, the leather handle of my foot locker snapped. It fell into the mud. I sat on it disconsolately. The rain came down in torrents.

WET AND HOMESICK

I was thoroughly wet, miserable and homesick. I wondered what my folks were doing. I tried to imagine the bright lights at home. I thought of my mother mixing coffee-cake dough to wait for Sunday morning breakfast. I wondered if the gang around The Oregonian were at that moment putting out the Sunday edition. And I wished I had been sent to the Sahara desert where it might have been warm and dry.

The next day, at Log Cabin near the lofty summit of White Pass, I met Brigadier General James A. (Pat-sy) O'Connor, the American Army engineer who had been assigned to construct the first overland transportation and communication system to Alaska. Log Cabin is not only an important place in my own immediate personal history. It is important in the history of the North. There, half a century ago, Inspector Constantine and a little band of scarlet-coated Royal Mounties checked in the gold-seekers of '98 as they came across the Chilkoot and White Passes of dreadful memory.

I saluted General O'Connor and then we shook hands. "So you're to be the public relations officer," he said.

"Yes, sir."

"Well, you'll have to operate by mail," he added. "We're just in a great big wilderness up here. But I expect the people back home will want to know what we're doing."

LEARNS OF O'CONNOR

On our way to Whitehorse, where our headquarters were to be, I learned something about General O'Connor. He had graduated from West Point in 1907. He had served all over the world with the Corps of Engineers. His biggest job had been supervision of the tunelling and fortifications at Corregidor. That is, his biggest job until he had been sent to Alaska to organize and establish the Northwest Service Command.

My heart sank momentarily when I first saw Whitehorse. Old weather-stained buildings stood along a single dusty street. The normal population was 349 and the town looked it. Gaunt, bare peaks framed the horizon. The Lewes River flowed swiftly past the settlement's back door. I was to find that Whitehorse's 349 people had warm hearts and bountiful natures, particularly where homesick Americans were concerned. But at first glance, the town made you gulp dryly and wonder how you possibly could survive. It resembled a movie version of an old Hudson's Bay post.

Our headquarters were in a single dilapidated building on the edge of Whitehorse. This had been loaned to us by the Public Roads Administration. Otherwise we would have had to camp out. The front half of the building we used for offices. All of us lived at the rear in a big open hall which we euphemistically called "Hotel DeGink". General O'Connor had a little room to himself. In the "Hotel" full colonels slept at the front end, and from there the order went all the way down the room to second lieutenants, which was me.

PRIMITIVE QUARTERS

We had no chairs, but improvised by taking the seats out of a string of old parlor cars on the narrow-gauge White Pass and Yukon Railway. General O'Connor's desk was made from plywood by a carpenter in our headquarters company. Col. Kenneth B. Bush, our chief of staff, had an office not much larger than a telephone booth. Before coming north he had been adjutant to Lieut.-Gen. George S. Patton at Desert Training Centre in Indio, Calif.

At Desert Training Centre the temperature occasionally rose to 125 degrees in the shade. When the mercury dropped out of the thermometer at Whitehorse and registered 65 degrees below at the U.S. Army Air Forces hangar, Col. Bush said to me, "Dick, I guess I got mixed up. I went to India and got my blood thinned down to the consistency of consomme. What I need up here is something in my veins as thick as split peas." And the Colonel shivered audibly.

IS NAMED AIDE

On Oct. 30, 1942, I was appointed aide-de-camp to Gen. O'Connor. This was the beginning of a remarkable experience. To this veteran army engineer, known throughout the regular army from Manila to Iceland as "Patsy" O'Connor, had been entrusted a series of critical tasks. He had to complete, maintain, and operate the 1,600-mile Alaska Military Highway. He had to build an overland telephone system from Edmonton to Fairbanks. He had to construct the Canol pipeline from Fort Norman on the Arctic Circle to Whitehorse. And he had to take charge of military operation of the White Pass and Yukon Railway.

MANY OTHER TASKS

In addition, there were many ancillary and related tasks. Airfields and flight strips were to be built at strategic points along the Alaska Highway. A flotilla of freighters, tugs and passenger steamers had to be operated in the stormy waters between Prince Rupert and Skagway. All these activities—yes, and more—came under Gen. O'Connor's direction.

With Col. Bush and Col. Caryl R. Haseltine of Corvallis, Ore., as his main subordinates, the General set out to accomplish these varied and historic tasks. As Gen. O'Connor's aide, I feel that I saw history take place during the year and a half in which I served in this capacity. And I was certain of this when I heard W. L. Mackenzie King, prime minister of Canada, declare that the construction of the Alaska Highway and related projects comprised the most significant development in all the epic annals of the North Country.

"The gold rush was somethin', young fellow," an old sourdough at Whitehorse said to me, "but it weren't nothin' to what your American soldier boys have done up here. No siree, the gold rush was small potatoes compared to your shenannigans. I wonder what Jack London'd have put down if he'd seen this!"

Yank Forces Are Tightening Grip on Pisa

By ELEANOR PACKARD

ROME, July 25—American armored forces tightening their grip on southern Pisa today despite heavy shellfire from German long-range guns emplaced on the north side of the Arno river, and smashed two strong enemy counter-attacks along the Pisa-Florence highway to the east.

Official reports said the Americans were firmly in control of the south bank of the Arno along a 32-mile front extending inland from the Tyrrhenian seacoast to within 18 miles west of Florence.

Yankee patrols overran all of the modern section of Pisa lying below the river and found that the retreating Nazis had demolished every bridge linking the new and the old cities.

8TH ARMY ADVANCES

On the American right flank, British 8th Army columns converged on Florence from the south and southwest, battling up to the two main highways from Poggibonsi and over the rugged hill country between.

One column captured Strada and pushed on to within 10 miles of Florence, while a second advanced east of Castelfiorentino to Voltigiano, 16 miles southwest of Florence and about 10 miles southeast of the American positions on the Arno.

On the Adriatic front, Allied forces drove to within striking distance of the important German supply road linking Sengialllia and Ostra, and forward units closed in for a direct assault on Ostra itself.

Documents captured by the advancing Allied forces revealed that the German 278th Division, which bore the brunt of the fighting from Pescara to Ancona, lost 3,000 to 4,000 men in killed, wounded and missing during that phase of the campaign.

Eden Reveals Cabinet Talks German Crisis

By EDWARD M. BEATTIE

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin
Copyright, 1944, by British United Press

LONDON, July 25 — Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden revealed in a carefully-worded statement to Commons today that the cabinet met last night to consider the sudden crisis inside revolt-shaken Germany, and declared that Allied powers "might justly draw encouragement" from the split between the Nazi regime and elements of the German high command.

Eden refused to elaborate on the scope of the cabinet discussions or on steps which he said have been taken for an exchange of information with Russia on the situation in Germany.

He warned the House soberly against drawing too optimistic inferences from the dramatic crack in the enemy front.

NO STATEMENT

"While we might justly draw encouragement from the recent news, it should spur us to further activity to ensure Germany's final defeat in the field at the earliest possible date," he said.

Eden said the government was not yet in position to make a considered statement on the Nazi crisis because the information available was insufficient to permit an estimate of the "full extent of the trouble or to draw any inferences as to its likely development."

"The German government not unnaturally has been at great pains to prevent information leaking from the country," he said. They have great experience and skill in the machinery of repression and secrecy and we therefore for the present are mainly dependent upon our assessment of various and often contradictory public statements."

NOTE OF CAUTION

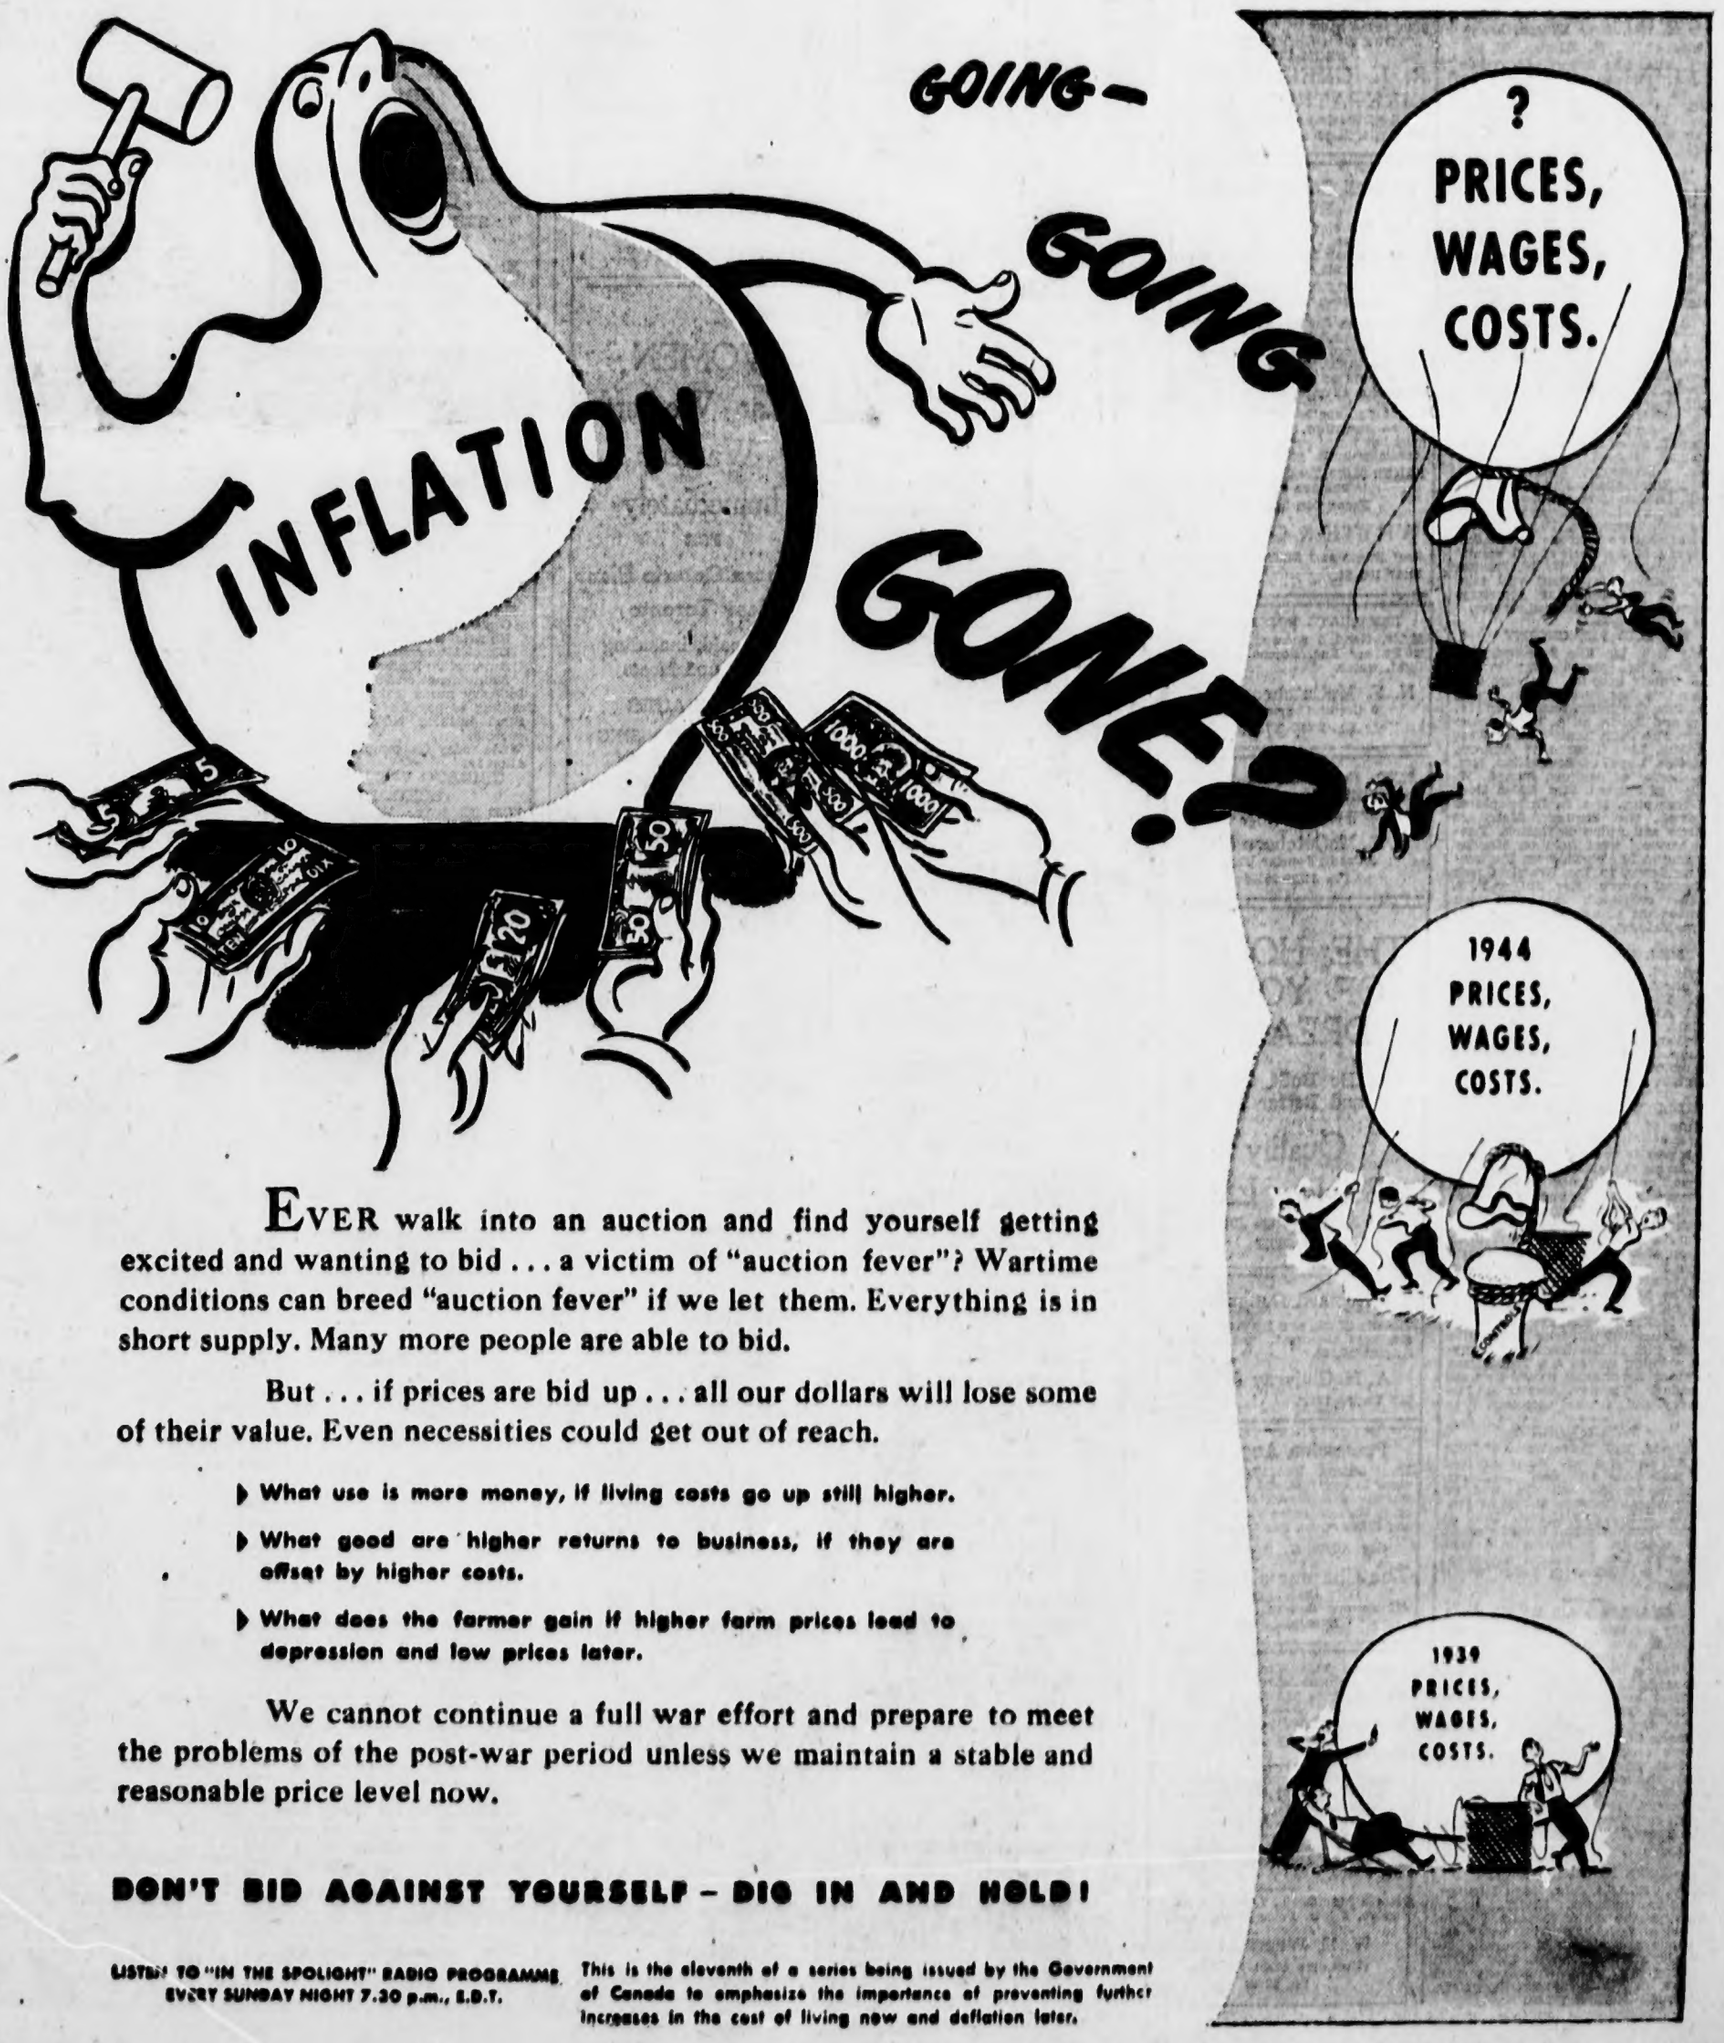

Eden said the cabinet decided at its meeting last night to strike a note of "caution" in all official comment on the German crisis.

Spellman Denies Any Peace Move In Vatican Visit

ROME, July 25.—(AP)—Persistent reports linking the visit of Archbishop Francis J. Spellman of New York to the Pope with possible peace overtures on the part of the Vatican brought a formal denial from the Archbishop yesterday that his trip here has any connection with such a subject.

After Archbishop Spellman learned of a publication of reports in America that he had discussed a "Papal peace plan" with the Holy Father Sunday he issued a denial through a spokesman.

In Vatican quarters it likewise was denied that a peace plan was the subject of Bishop Spellman's conversations with the Pope or that the Pope was expected to come forward with any peace plan.

EVER walk into an auction and find yourself getting excited and wanting to bid . . . a victim of "auction fever"? Wartime conditions can breed "auction fever" if we let them. Everything is in short supply. Many more people are able to bid.

But . . . if prices are bid up . . . all our dollars will lose some of their value. Even necessities could get out of reach.

- What use is more money, if living costs go up still higher.
- What good are higher returns to business, if they are offset by higher costs.
- What does the farmer gain if higher farm prices lead to depression and low prices later.

We cannot continue a full war effort and prepare to meet the problems of the post-war period unless we maintain a stable and reasonable price level now.

Partisans Engaged In Heavy Fighting

LONDON, July 25.—(CP)—With Allied heavy bombers giving a helping hand by bombing German troop concentrations in southern Yugoslavia, partisan forces have engaged in the heaviest fighting in weeks on three sectors—Bosnia, Serbia and Montenegro—a communique by Marshal Tito said last night. Partisan forces captured Tesanj, an enemy stronghold in central Bosnia, where the enemy's 6th Ustashi regiment was routed.

Killed in Action

VERNON, B.C., July 25—(CP)—Sgt. Air Gur. Wilfrid Barnard, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Barnard of Vernon, was killed in action with the R.A.F. overseas July 19, his parents were informed yesterday. Born in Nokomis, Sask., Sgt. Barnard came with his family to Vernon in 1940.

Before the Magistrate

Found guilty by Magistrate A. I. Millar, K.C., of terminating his employment without giving notice to his employers, Leon Mathieu was fined $50 or three months.

Two charges of being in possession of a preparation of certain drugs, against Samuel Shluker in the court of Magistrate A. I. Millar, K.C., Monday, were remanded until July 29 for judgment. Two similar counts against Elizabeth May Austin were remanded until Tuesday morning.

The first accused on July 5, it was stated, approached Walter Miller, Edmonton, and offered him $25 for the use of his car in order to go into the country.

Leaving the city, the witness said, he drove the two accused to Mundare, and shortly after leaving there he noticed "a funny smell, a strong alcoholic odor."

As they were passing through Vegreville, R.C.M.P. stopped and searched the car and then took them all to the police barracks.

W. G. K. Bloor is acting for Shluker, and Hugh Calais McDonald, K.C., for May Austin. Hugh John MacDonald, K.C., is special prosecutor.

Ed. R. Nichol knew what the speed limit in the city was, he told Magistrate A. I. Millar, K.C., Tuesday morning, but he didn't think he was going 40 miles an hour, as police claimed. He pleaded guilty to the charge of driving at an unreasonable speed, however, and was fined $15 or 21 days.

Eight persons who celebrated found themselves answering to charges of intoxication. Three were newscomers and a fourth was waived to juvenile court. Of the others, Mildred Gordon was assessed $200 or two months; Rita Sinclair, four months with hard labor; Jesse Fuller, $30 or six weeks; Reuben Reay, $25 or 35 days.

James Cumming pleaded not guilty to failing to yield the right-of-way when entering a main highway, and objected to an adjournment on the grounds that he offered "to settle with his opponent and the opponent wouldn't do anything about it." Because a crown witness was not present, the case was adjourned to Aug. 10.

Flies From Britain

King George Is in Italy For Tour of Inspection

NAPLES, July 25.—(CP)—King George of Britain, trim in the uniform of a field marshal, landed Sunday night in Italy on an inspection tour which will carry him to forward battle fronts approaching Pisa, Florence and Rimini.

The King's big plane with Beaufighter and Spitfire escort landed on a bomb-battered airport after flying from Britain.

The King, on his first visit to Italy since the outbreak of war, appeared fresh after the swift trip, broken by one three-hour halt. Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, Mediterranean theatre commander, first greeted him. Then Admiral Sir John Cunningham, Allied naval commander in this theatre, and Harold McMillen, British minister to the French committee in Algiers, and Air Vice Marshal G. B. A. Baker greeted their monarch in that order.

STANDS AND CHATS

The King stood under the wings of his plane for five minutes chatting with the four man reception committee and members of his own small party. With him were his secretary, Sir Eric Mieville, Col. Hon. Sir Piers Legh, his equerry; Group Capt. E. H. Fielden, captain of the King's flight; a bodyguard and two valets.

Wing Cmdr. Henry Collins, the pilot, said good weather favored the uneventful trip. The King spent 20 minutes in the cockpit before retiring Sunday night. He was interested particularly in the automatic pilot.

Collins flew in over the volcano Vesuvius and carefully circled the field three times before landing.

Runways on the airport were smooth but most buildings were shattered or flattened by Allied bombs while the Germans held it.

Collins said: "We left on Saturday evening, arrived in North Africa the next day and continued to Naples after a three-hour rest."

TRANSPORT PLANE

The flight was made in an R.A.F. transport command aircraft with a crew of five.

Before leaving Britain, the King signed a warrant under the Great Seal appointing five counsellors of state to act for him during his absence from the realm. They are Queen Elizabeth, Princess Elizabeth, the Duke of Gloucester, the Princess Royal (the King's sister), and the Duchess of Fife, widow of Prince Arthur of Connaught who died in 1938.

Princess Elizabeth, who was 18 last April, acts as a counsellor for the first time, in accordance with the amended provisions of the Regents' Act of 1937, which was altered by parliament at the King's request last year.

Finds Edmonton Steadily Growing

Making a tour of Western Canada visiting stores, O. D. Vaughan, vice-president, and J. Livingstone, director, The T. Eaton Company, arrived here Tuesday to confer with J. H. Wildman, manager of the Edmonton store, and other company executives.

Mr. Vaughan said that business was extremely active throughout the west, and that Edmonton appeared to be growing bigger with each successive visit he had made here.

De Gaulle Hopes Collaboration To Be Effected

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin
Copyright, 1944, by British United Press

ALGIERS, July 25 — Gen. Charles de Gaulle told the French consulative assembly today that he hoped for the conclusion soon of practical accords with Britain and America regarding the collaboration of the French administration and Allied armies on liberated territory.

De Gaulle addressed the assembly in his first public statement since he returned from the United States.

He said he hoped the prospective accords will be a point of departure for smoother relations between his Committee of Liberation and the Allies, and will be a precursor to French participation in the armistice "on which France's destiny depends."

BOND OF INTEREST

De Gaulle said he found the broadest understanding of France's problems in his talks with President Roosevelt and British leaders.

"There is a notable bond of common interest between France and England," he said. "With the United States our friendship is at the same time reasoned and instinctive."

He paid tribute to Russia's "gigantic role" in the war and spoke of the cordiality of his talks with Canadian government leaders and those of refugee governments in London.

Chicago Grain Futures Rally

CHICAGO, July 25.—(AP)—Traders turned to the buying side today and all grain futures rallied strongly. Wheat gains reached a cent at times, and rye as much as two cents.

Activity generally was light because of conflicting market influences. The possibility of an early ending of the war in Europe discouraged market support, but on the other side were such factors as government support by purchases of cash wheat in the southwest, a higher-than-expected ceiling of 82 cents for oats futures, and large mill buying.

Wheat for delivery next July was offered for $1.56 a bushel.

Wheat closed ⅝ to 1⅛ cent higher, oats ⅝ to ⅞ up, rye up 1½ to 2¼ and barley ⅛ to ⅝ higher.

At Annual Show

George Dickson Rose Wins Bulletin Trophy

Several hundred rose blossoms, displayed in the rotunda of the Capitol theatre Monday, heralded the opening of Edmonton's 12th annual Rose show with Judge Ernest J. Stowe choosing a crimson rose of the George Dickson variety exhibited by Mrs. J. J. McDonnell, 10046 117 street, as the winner of The Edmonton Bulletin trophy for the best bloom in the show.

Mrs. McDonnell bought a few rose bushes eight years ago. The winning blossom was grown on one of these original bushes. So far the same bush has had some 20 blossoms on it this year.

The rose show is again sponsored by Walter P. Wilson, manager of the Capitol theatre, and Alfred Pike, manager of the Pike and Company, seedsmen. Both gentlemen are rose enthusiasts and grew blooms in England before coming to Canada.

It was 15 years ago that Mr. Wilson first approached Mr. Pike, with the idea of encouraging him to grow bushes to be sold at a reasonable price. In the earlier days rose bushes did not winter well in this climate but Mr. Pike, who had been experimenting since 1916, after much research work produced a briar from which the proper qualities were secured.

Once this problem had been overcome the bushes still had to be sold at a reasonable price. Mr. Wilson guaranteed to dispose of 5,000 shoots through the Capitol theatre, providing the price be lowered. This was done and every bush was disposed of.

Hundreds of thousands of these particular rose bushes have been distributed throughout Alberta during the past 12 years. Shipments have been made by Mr. Pike to all parts of Canada. More than 120,000 rose bushes have been sold in Edmonton by the Pike company alone.

Some of the finest roses in the world have been grown here and the campaign during these years has made people not only "rose conscious" but "garden conscious" as well. Nowhere in Western Canada are nicer gardens to be found than in this district.

FIRST SHOW SUGGESTED

The first rose show was suggested when Mr. Pike, Mr. Wilson and others, who had rose bushes, displayed some of the blooms in the lobby of the Capitol theatre. Such a sensation was caused that it was decided to stage an annual rose show. The first one took place in 1932.

Entries each year have been increasing and this year is no exception. In spite of a rain Sunday that slightly damaged some blooms that had not been picked, the display this year equalled, if not surpassed, any year of the show.

Winners of prizes are as follows:

Mitchell Believes Training Program Is Best in World

OTTAWA, July 25.—(CP)—Labor Minister Mitchell said last night in the Commons that he believed "No other nation is as well prepared as Canada in its training program for the rehabilitation of the armed forces."

"I have no fears whatsoever as to the ability of the Dominion in co-operation with the provinces and the municipalities in providing training for every service man who desires to take it," the minister said.

Mr. Mitchell said that of the 150,000 men and women discharged from the forces only 3,000 have applied for vocational training. Many of the men and women were returning to their former employment without taking advantage of the government sponsored training.

Jury Is Unable To Determine Cause of Death

A coroner's jury Monday, continuing inquiry into the death of Merill Frederick Lydell of Grands Prairie, whose mutilated body was found on the Canadian Pacific Railway right-of-way about four miles south of the city on July 4 last, found that "From evidence received we have no knowledge of what caused his death."

The evidence of one witness, Douglas Leslie, Edmonton, was given, in which he stated that he and Lydell had been drinking during the afternoon of July 3.

BOUGHT "MOONSHINE"

The two men met up with Elma Georgina Lee of Mission, B.C., and had supper at the New Way cafe on Whyte avenue. Later, they purchased some "moonshine" and then drove Lydell's truck along the Edmonton-Calgary highway, witness said.

The woman demanded to be let out of the truck, saying she would not ride with Lydell. A short time after she started to walk, but was picked up, and then again left the truck after riding only a short distance.

Leslie stated that at that point he decided to get out of the truck to accompany Mrs. Lee. However, Lydell got out instead and Leslie brought the truck back to the city and went immediately to the New Way cafe.

When Mrs. Lee arrived at the cafe she stated she did not know where Lydell had gone, as she had been given a lift into town.

After waiting a while, Leslie continued, he took two friends with him in the truck and went out to look for Lydell. Some more liquor was consumed and the three of them decided to go to a home at McKernan lake. It was while they were returning from there that the truck bogged down.

SPENT NIGHT IN TRUCK

Leslie stated he was left alone and spent the night in the truck, returning to the city in the morning. When he first heard about Lydell's body being found, he was afraid to come to the police, he said.

The inquest was presided over by Dr. E. A. Braithwaite, chief provincial coroner, and conducted by Sgt. Fred A. Broadrib, R.C.M.P.

Members of the jury were: J. W. Parks, foreman; Francis LeGassick, R. J. Talbot, Francis Taylor, E. W. Armstrong and George Bagnall.

Harvest Problems Are Studied Here

Problems of harvest help were discussed at the Legislative Buildings Tuesday, at meetings of the Dominion-provincial farm labor committee, held under chairmanship of Robert M' Putnam, extension director, provincial department of agriculture.

At least 2,000 harvest workers will be needed from Eastern Canada this fall, it was decided. In addition, means of obtaining help from potential labor sources in Alberta will be examined by the committee.

In 1943, a total of 1,200 harvesters came to the province from Eastern Canada.

Labor prospects to be investigated include Indian help from the north, as well as men from the armed services and school students.

Present at the meeting were T. B. Pickersgill, Ottawa, associate director, National Selective Service; J. K. McKenzie, Calgary, agriculture adviser, NSS; Capt. T. W. Beaver, headquarters, M.D. 13, Calgary; G. Thom, NSS office, Edmonton, and S. H. Gandier, supervisor of junior activities, department of agriculture. O. S. Logman, deputy minister of agriculture, chairman of the meeting, was not at the meetings, being out of the city on business.

(It was announced a few weeks ago from Quebec that Mr. Lizotte planned to give up his federal seat and contest his home constituency in the Quebec general elections Aug. 8.)

CCF Speaker Says Resources Are For People

"The resources of the country must belong to the people and not exploited by a few", said Mrs. Laura Jamieson, M.L.A., of Vancouver, speaking at a CCF-sponsored public meeting in the auditorium of the Masonic Temple Monday evening.

So long as the wealth of the province is left in the hands of private enterprise, socializing money will not do any good the speaker declared. The CCF party will be the first to have the home market come first. Private enterprise will never build low rental houses and the CCF government, when elected, will have a housing scheme to take care of all.

WIPE OUT POVERTY

"The people of Canada must be lifted out of poverty permanently. The boys may win the war but unless we extend democracy from the political sphere to the economic sphere the war will be lost, Mrs. Jamieson stated.

"So long as the resources of one province do not belong to the people but to one small group we have not a true democracy. Democracy means equality of opportunity but we have not democracy as long as a small group is in control," the speaker said.

"Education should depend on merit and education should be at the expense of the government," the speaker continued. "As long as the education depends on parents' income there cannot be equality of education.

"This is a revolutionary period created by war and this period gives the people an opportunity to extend democracy which the CCF party will do," she said.

Mrs. Mary E. Butterworth, CCF candidate, said every person in Alberta will be entitled to adequate medical, surgical, dental, nursing, pharmaceutical, and hospital services without charge.

Doctors, dentists and other technical personnel will be trained in universities to provide the large numbers required.

WILL BUILD HOSPITALS

Hospitals will be built to fill the need. The province will manufacture the drugs required instead of paying tribute to the monopoly chemical industry.

J. H. Dowler, also a CCF candidate, told of what the party promises for the returned man. "No man is to be demobilized from the services until he has a full-time, satisfactorily paid job," he said.

This province must be prepared to complete the education of the boys who left schools and universities to fight, he said. In a co-operative Alberta there is need for thousands of doctors and other trained men.

J. E. Enright, candidate, said the CCF party wants organization of youth, vocational guidance in education, and people living together in co-operation.

PROMISES ADVANCES

"The CCF will further what Social Credit has done, Candidate Clifford E. Lee declared. The province has gone as far as it can go in social services with the Social Credit policy but the CCF will go ahead, he said. The party will have mothers' allowances, free higher education, and a free health policy.

Arthur Thornton was chairman. More than 200 people attended the meeting, which was followed by a reception for the women in the library, when representatives of various women's organizations were invited to meet Mrs. Jamieson.
